AFFAIRS AT CINCINNATI.

Mortifying Disappointment at the Thin Attendance.

Sudden Rise in Trumbull Stock in the Sorehead Market.

Grats Brown and Carl Schurz "Hoist with Their Own Petard."

Frantic Efforts to Fit the Crooked Planks of the Platform.

Democratic Influence Strongly and Busily Operating.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 29.—Increased confusion has been the chief result of the arrivals today, but with the incoming of every train some vast sorehead pretense was punctured. For instance, it was industriously circulated for twenty-four hours that thirty-three car-loads of these unfortunates upon whom MANIERRE had succeeded in forcing his free tickets had left New-York on Saturday, and when that train got here this morning and was analyzed, it was found to have brought just twenty-five forlorn individuals in sympathy with the great attempt of the Missourians to hoist their GRATZ out of his sphere. These twenty-five, with other casual travelers on the train, had been filled with dismal forebodings by the accounts of the situations here, when they were assured billiard tables were at a premium as beds, and benches in the market-houses beginning to be in demand as eligible lodgings. One gentleman, a correspondent, who had been convinced by constant reiteration of the story that this city was crammed to its lips with suffering, and humanity, eagerly searched the advertisements of rooms to let in private houses, and, having secured one of these, sauntered about town to find that there were vacancies in several of the minor hotels. The truth is, the Burnett is comfortably full; the Spencer the same; St. James and Gibson crowded; but the other houses yet have aching voids which no sorheads come to fill. Contrasted with its usual appearance, the city is undoubtedly full, but it requires extraordinary capacity in exaggeration to declare that there are here anything like the numbers which it was claimed by the managers of the show would attend.

Yet it is rather more below expectation in the character than in the number of those present. One sorrowing sorehead, greeting another, said there were too many soreheads here to suit him, to which his friend answered: "The worst of it is, those who aren't scallawags are Democrats." These persons gave a vivid, but general view of the character of the crowd in these few words.

With the additional arrivals of today the gathering has taken a more decidedly melancholy tinge, consequent upon crushed aspirations for office. First is Senator FENTON, who has actually appeared here, and of course the Senator comes in the interests of reform. With him are Gen. E. A. Merritt, Waldo Hutchins, Ethan Allen, Chas. D. Lamont, R. J. Bennett, Wm. Dorsheimer, J. J. Flanagan, T. C. Lazo, with Tousey; Gen. Cochrane, Gen. Palmer, and some few others, who have been mentioned in previous dispatches, are not of sufficient consequence to be mentioned at all. From other States the list of prominent men is even more niggardly. From Louisiana have come Gov. Warmoth, Gen. Frank Herron, T. W. Carway, Hart Hanes, Jno. Lockwood, George A. Sheridan and a few other leaders of the Warmoth Ring. There have come no others of prominence, in addition to those named on previous days, except FRANK W. BIRD, of Massachusetts.

Taken in the lump, there are this evening not more than 800 persons in this city who have been brought here from other places to attend the Convention, and fully one-fourth of these are Democrats, the more prominent of whom will be named, and who are here to look out for the interests of their party. The numbers here will probably be doubled or a little more by the arrivals of to-night, to-morrow and Wednesday, but it is now perfectly clear that there is not the slightest possible chance of there being 2,000 Republicans here in sympathy with the rebellion, as a result of the raking of the whole country for the disaffected, and a liberal distribution of free tickets in such centres as New-York. There may be 1,500 of them, possibly 1,600; but it is altogether more likely that there will not be more than 1,200. It will be impossible for them to swell their numbers here as they did in Jefferson City, and they will be figured up by actual count after they all get here.

The falsifications already indulged in show that the managers are seeking to impress upon the country that they are in the van of a huge army marching upon the White House via Cincinnati, and the truth must be sent along with these exaggerations, or there is danger that they will be credited. As an absolute proof of the little strength the movement has in the country generally, it may be added that nearly all who are here and are coming are from New-York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. From the other States only the following soreheads have appeared: Maine, three; Massachusetts, four; Connecticut, four; New-Jersey, three; Maryland, three; Virginia, two; Mississippi, two; Louisiana, fifty-five; Arkansas, sixteen; Tennessee, nine; Texas, two; Iowa, one; Kansas, eight. The following States have not been able to furnish a single sorehead as yet, with decidedly all in prospects of any supply in the future: New-Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, California, Nevada and Nebraska. There are some people here from Kentucky, but none as yet claiming to be genuine soreheads. From this exhibit it will be be seen that the overflow from a few States will be required to be spread over a very large territory in order that all the States may be represented, as they probably will be found to be when the Convention meets. But the soreheads, undismayed in their innocent amusement of making a President, are working with as much earnestness as if there was some reality in it.

The developments of today have been of some interest and importance as showing the same want of a common purpose, the same indefiniteness of aims which has been observable from the first. The chief result of the free expression of opinion of those now here, who will probably dominate the Convention, is to sink CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS from a probability to a possibility. Men who were claimed for ADAMS before their arrival are found to be for somebody else when they get here, but the killing of the Massachusetts candidate is primarily due to the bitter feud between the Davis and Trumbull factions, and the sharpness of strength developed by the latter.

KASSON, as an example, was claimed by several, but when their eyes fell upon them they seemed to be unequivocally for TRUMBULL and GRESLEY as the first choice for President and Vice-President, with ADAMS and BROWN as second. So, Louisiana was declared to be all for ADAMS, but arriving here TRUMBULL was declared to be the first choice of a majority. There being several of such cases, Trumbull stock rose rapidly and the Sorehead devotees became correspondingly elate. Davis, however, saw the great advantage of having the most of the old Whigs working in his interest, and the entire Democratic influence, which is strongly felt, exerted in his behalf; so that he is still ahead, and marked to win among his prominent supporters are E. W. STOUGHTON and DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, of New-York, but he has ardent friends in all the States which have yet sent anybody here. The only thing which can defeat him, and which possibly may, is that the Adams men holding the balance of power, will be likely to throw their votes for DAVIS, if they are enraged at the Davis men for the slaughter of their favorite. It is expected that when they find that ADAMS has no chance, they will go for TRUMBULL and thus put him through. In that case HORACE GREELEY is the most probable candidate for Vice-President, but in case DAVIS should win, CURTIS is the favorite for the second place.

GRATZ BROWN has fallen from his high estate, and "Bill and Joe" and themselves cast away in even the miniature tempest they have succeeded in raising. The soreheads have proved the most unfilial of children, and have repudiated their parents with a good deal of scorn. Missouri is emphatically nowhere, and poor GRATZ has only a little better prospect of getting the nomination than he has of obtaining that at Philadelphia. Poor FALSTAFF is shorn of some impossibilities, and his adherents maintain that strictly domestic character for which it is remarkable. The fight has narrowed down to a triangular contest between ADAMS, TRUMBULL and DAVIS, with the last as the first probability, TRUMBULL as a certainty in one contingency, and ADAMS without much of a show.

There have been equally significant developments today in the attempts to manufacture a set of principles for these mongrels. It has been apparent from the start that the party in this affair which is acting from conviction and upon principle, and which believes that "Hold fast the living principle is necessary to success," would have the chief control in making up the platform. This party has about all the brains there is, the rest being a combination of political revenges and avarice. The chief men engaged in the construction of the platform are Mr. Atkinson, Wells, Endicott, Ultra Reverse-Reform Party, aided by some of the followers of TRUMBULL from the West, like WHITE and GROSVENOR. It was supposed that these gentlemen would have arranged the matter substantially beforehand, and it appears they did so for their own minds were concerned, they resolved among themselves that the Missouri Liberal platform resolution on the tariff question was a sufficiently clear and forcible expression of their views, and they resolved further that they would secure its adoption. Meeting Mr. ATKINSON in the breakfast-room of the Burnet House this morning, your correspondent asked: "Well, how is the party of principle and conviction getting on with the platform?" "Very well, Sir," was the confident reply; "we are the party of convictions on that subject and we propose to carry them out."

But, after all, these gentlemen of doctrine have not found a smooth road to travel today. They have run foul of many disagreements and an apparently irreconcilable diversity of opinion. The politicians, the bargainers, the traders, the success-at-any-price seekers, have beset them with all manner of considerations, and finally, the New-York operators, and the few Pennsylvania strikers who have arrived, to wit, the two CAMERONS, ALLEN and MOORHEAD, have met the gentlemen of doctrine and conviction with point blank propositions to refer the subject to the zealous guardianship of the people, or ignore it altogether. It was necessary, of course, to confer with the several delegates as early as possible. So the conference began last night, where it was resolved that New-York should first be consulted. Accordingly a consultation was held at the New-York Head-quarters, Room No. 50, Burnett House, this forenoon, present Senator Fenton, Waldo Hutchins, Palmer, William Dorsheimer, Lamont, Merritt, Tousey and Cochrane, and other prominent men. The Missouri resolution was coldly received. Much discussion followed, when finally a draft of a proposition was evolved from the inner consciousness of one of Mr. GREELEY's friends, which, it is said, had the approval of that gentleman, though this is not positively known. This resolution was so ambiguously worded that the candid ADAMS would have smiled, and the candid DAVIS would have smiled, it was a general sort of declaration that so long as there was need of revenue, there would be need of a tariff to raise it; that its adjustment should not impose needless burdens upon the people; that the question of taxation directly concerns the people, and that the delegates from the intelligence and wisdom here assembled confides the question to their judgment, pledging themselves to abide by the people's decision.

It is needless to say this by-brid expression was not agreed to even by the New-Yorkers, but they adjourned and carried it up to the St. James, where, at 12 o'clock, a more formal conference of Democrats of all shades and interests was held. The newspaper men were all carefully excluded from this gathering, except such as represented sympathizing journals. There were present among the leading men Atkinson, Wells, Grosvenor, Gov. Cox, Gordon L. Ford and W. W. Goodrich, of Brooklyn, Senators Fenton, Carl Schurz, Doolittle, Bogy, Bayard and Hatch, of Illinois, and quite a squad of Missourians. A long discussion followed, but no propositions were submitted. There was such a development of contrary opinions that the party of brains and conviction retired disheartened at the prospect.

These gentlemen have meant business from the start, and they have depended upon the sincerity of the cry of revenue reform in the West to carry them through, but now, to their disgust, they find the scheming of the Western politicians as to the candidates and their chances so overpowering that they are well nigh on the lee shore of disaster. The more sanguine are still confident of a harmonious issue, and such may be the result; but it can only come through an emasculated expression on the subject of revenue, which shall be acceptable to the politicians who, setting aside all other considerations, look only to success and the spoils. "Yes what else could be expected," said a man of convention to me this afternoon, "when such men as DAVID A. WELLS and J. K. MORRHEAD meet to mutually agree on tariff and revenue?" This was a literal fact as to the meeting, and the result of inevitable disagreement with the rankling of past bitter hostilities in the Ways and Means in Congress was equally literal. Another conference will be held to-morrow, when something fit to lay before the Committee of the Convention on Resolutions, it is hoped, will be agreed upon.

The most conspicuous and striking feature of this "mass" gathering being the presence of a great body of dismissed office-holders and disappointed office-seekers; the next most conspicuous feature is the presence of a powerful Democratic influence, which is felt in all quarters, and which is creating much disgust in certain Republican stomachs. These gentlemen have not stayed at home, as they were both warned and requested to do. They are here, and they are very busy. They are nearly unanimous for DAVIS, and they tempt the seekers after success with such alluring promises as these: "Give us DAVIS, and we can carry Indiana by forty thousand majority." This thing has gone so far, that the supporters of ADAMS have cried aloud "Rats today; Hands off or we return to GRANT." But they knew that the contract for delivery in this great bargain of politics calls for their possessions, and they do not heed the warning. The Commercial, today, is savage upon them, and denounces the "Davis job," as it calls the nice little arrangement put up in Washington to nominate that gentleman.

The Democratic Party in Congress is discreetly and ably represented here by such men as MARSHALL, BRIGHT, ROBINSON, GREEN, COOPER and HARRIS. From Illinois comes Wm. H. MORRISON, the ablest Democratic politician of the State, and a friend of TRUMBULL first and DAVIS second; from Indiana comes the shrewd ALVORD, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, and Col. WILLIAMS, of Lafayette, one of the ablest Democratic managers in the State. WATTERSON, of Louisville, and HYDE, of St. Louis, both leading Democratic newspaper representatives of the "pusillanimous policy," are also here, very active in cutting and drying things for their Republican friends.

Thus it is that a very large proportion of the Convention will from the outset bear the Democratic stamp, and give to Judge DAVIS no large a vote at the outset that the Adams element, provided there is anything left of it, will only be able to take refuge in TRUMBULL and arrange itself in securing his nomination. What effect this will have can be conjectured. The Democrats here, with very few exceptions, unreservedly declare that DAVIS is the only man that they can take stock in, and they hold at over timid Republicans like a cudgel. The people will not fail to see that it is a trade and a dicker on every hand, and every candidate like DAVIS, who is not to be negotiated for, is put out of the catalogue.

The bare mention of these facts is sufficient to show how utterly unprincipled this whole thing is, and the nation at large can as truly estimate the predecessors of these place-hunters as those who are here ostensibly for the disreputable spectacle. The utter confusion which exists is only natural in so mad and wild a race as this for the spoils of office, but words are wholly powerless to fitly describe it.

The assimilation of these opposing particles of Republican disaffection goes on slowly, and the mass is yet incongruous. Every man almost has dismissed ideas of how to reach the offices by the destruction of the Republican Party, which is the only object all have in common. Nobody is willing to surrender his opinions to that of any one else, and though it is possible that a combination may be made, and even a platform, with something that will look like harmony, the surprises and the whole thing will crumble away from the self-seeking of individuals. If Mr. TRUMBULL is nominated, the Davis and Adams men, to a great extent, will repudiate the ticket, and return with swift haste from the dry husks such action will involve; and so it will be whoever is set up by Cincinnati to be cast down by Philadelphia. There is evidence of cohesion to-night that there was, and there was not enough of it before to give a chance of success to anything done here.

There is not only lack of common aims but notwithstanding the number of politicians of small calibre here, there are many of the directing intellects. One very amusing feature of this gathering is the conspicuous absence of the prominent men identified with its inception. This becomes all the more amusing when it is known that not less than five of them are absent, because modesty forbids the presence of candidates. ADAMS is not here for well-known reasons, but he cannot well be called a candidate. It is different with the others. GREELEY is not here because he is a candidate. Neither is TRUMBULL for the same reason, nor BROWN, nor PALMER, nor DAVIS, as a matter of course. But this results in a great scarcity of leading and governing minds, and renders the mediocrity of the gathering very apparent. Taking out SCHURZ and DOX, the party is personal and convicious. Down in New-England, and the remainder is an exceedingly ordinary make-up.

There is but little talk yet as to the organization of the Convention; but it has been suggested, as this is a body devoted to reform, Gov. H. C. WARMOTH should be temporary Chairman, and Senator TRUMBULL permanent President. The suggestion is not likely to be acted upon, however, and the only other name yet heard for temporary Chairman is CARL SCHURZ, who to-night is being lionized by the Germans at a public social reception.

The New-Yorkers have announced that they will adjourn to-morrow morning, and there is a chance of his remaining a forlorn hope, but that will not be after the second ballot.

The Reunion and Reform Convention has sunk out of notice, and dwindled into a merely local affair. It will meet at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, at Mozart Hall, and having effected a temporary organization, will adjourn to await the organization of the sorheads. The men engaged in it have no further plans at present.

Among the very few men here who are respectable in ability and political character is Hon. HENRY R. SELDON, of New-York, and he will probably be elected upon the meeting officer, or used in some way that his name may be made serviceable to his associates.

The Convention must begin investigating as soon as organized, and first of all seek to learn what has become of all the soreheads who have been lost en route. Traine which have been in motion for days, and which have left Philadelphia and other cities with thousands, reach here with only a score or so, and great anxiety is being expressed as to the whereabouts of those mysteriously missing cohorts of the anybody-to-be-at-Grant army.

The National Executive Committee of Labor-reformers met here on Saturday, but had nothing of importance having adjourned until tomorrow. They declare that the only purpose of their meeting is to map out their independent campaign in behalf of DAVIS and PARKER, and that it has no reference to what may be done here by the soreheads.

There is an unreliable rumor afloat to-night that Judge CHASE is to be brought forward as a compromise candidate. It is undoubted that there is considerable fright at the strength DAVIS is developing, and several compromises are talked of, among others Gen. COX and Gen. PALMER, but the general situation is as stated.

Friends of DAVIS have prepared an ultra form to put him out which, in its substance the Missouri resolutions, with the revenue plank smoothed down to the desired ambiguity. These are samples of the numberless rumors afloat, and are strikingly indicative of the existing chaos.

Gov. BRADFORD, of Maryland, is said to have been appointed upon the permanent Chairman of the Convention. This would be perfectly in keeping. He was Surveyor of Customs at Baltimore under JOHNSON, was turned out by GRANT, and has voted with the Democrats for the past six years.

Midnight.—Pennsylvania has at last arrived, and instead of the 100 delegates promised by MCCLURE, with much a flourish, we have a beggarly array of thirty, which, added to the five already here, makes thirty-five. They are almost identical with the signers of the Philadelphia call of two weeks ago, and among them are, beside McCLURE, Gen. A. L. Thomas, who became Judge Kelly last Fall, and he declares his purpose to be to destroy the Republican Party; John Hickman, Gen. Kane, Robert Morris, Smedley Darlington, Edwin T. Chase, and others of still less note. The delay in MCCLURE's arrival is ascribed to enable him to get the Pennsylvania delegation well in hand. The inner purpose of his operations was revealed to me today, and it is a most characteristic piece of political intrigue, as well as a striking commentary on the profession of civil service reform which this Convention is expected to make.

He proposes to support DAVIS if DAVIS is the winning man, and then all Democratic candidates for State officers and Congress in turn, for which he hopes for Democratic support for member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, nominated by Liberal Republicans, which will result, as he hopes, in placing him in the Senate in place of CAMERON. This is his game.

The additional arrivals from New-York include twenty-two from Brooklyn, Albany and Troy, among whom are COACHMAN, ARCHIBALD, CHERRY, GODDARD, JAMES BARKER, ISAAC ALLABEE, Ex-Postmaster TILKESS, of Albany, and a few of minor note.

The Louisiana delegation held a meeting to-night and elected Gov. WARMOTH chairman. They did nothing beyond appointing a committee of five to confer with other Southern delegations.

A delegation of ten has at last arrived from Georgia. Among them are the two MCWHARTERS and SAFFOLD, and several Johnsonized Republicans.

THE MISSOURI BORDER.

Military Movements in the West—The Cass County Regulators Active.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 29.—The Sixth United States Infantry, Col. WM. B. HAZEN, has been ordered from this Department to the Department of Dakota for service on the line of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

An additional detachment of troops has been sent to assist in expelling the white outlaws from the Indian Territory.

The railroad managers have discharged all the employes attached to the train on which STEVENSON, CLINE and DUTRO were murdered in Cass County on the 24th inst., they having received orders to do so from some of the "regulators." Several railroad officials fled from Sedalia, Mo., on Saturday, in the rumored report that some of the Cass County outlaws were there for the purpose of assassinating them. Among those who left was R. S. EVERES, Manager of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad Company.

WEST INDIES.

Private Importation of Arms in Cuba Prohibited—Affairs in San Domingo.

HAVANA, April 29.—The importation of arms and ammunition by private parties has been prohibited by the authorities.

SAN JUAN DE PORTO RICO, April 20, via HAVANA, April 29.—Gov. BAEZ, brother of President BAEZ, of San Domingo, has arrived here. He brings the news that Ex-Minister PEDRO RICARD, who joined the Spaniards during their occupation, has returned to the island. Gov. BAEZ also brings advices from Hayti, that on the 16th inst. the Government troops defeated a small band of insurgents near Kayes.

Spread of the Fires in the Catskill Mountains.

CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., April 29.—Large fires are burning on the peaks of the Catskill Mountains, north-west of this city. The scene is grand at night, when the peaks seem to wear a crown of fire, and attracts hundreds of gazers in the vicinity. The fires are plainly visible in this city and further south to a distance of twenty-five miles. They seem to be confined chiefly to dry leaves, dead trees and undergrowth; no very extensive damage having as yet been heard of. Fires are burning along the Rondout and Oswego Railroad, and a considerable amount of cordwood and railroad ties has been consumed. Everything is very dry and the fire spreads with great rapidity.

Niagara County Republicans Convention—President Grant Indorsed.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., April 29.—At the Republican Convention for the First District of Niagara County, held in this city today, M. C. RICHARDSON, EDWARD C. GRAVES and A. W. COMSTOCK were elected delegates to the Elmira Convention. Resolutions were adopted unanimously indorsing Gen. GRANT, and recommending his renomination.

WASHINGTON.

Progress of Legislation at the National Capital.

The New Rules in the Senate—Senator Trumbull—The Alabama Claims—Expansion in the House—The President Endorses the Eight-Hour Law.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Senate today accomplished the most important work it has done in any one day for months. A resolution in the nature of a rule was adopted, which, for the rest of this session, places it in the power of the majority to limit debate upon the amendments to Appropriation bills to five-minute speeches, making a motion for a recess a privileged motion, like adjournment, so as to make evening sessions more easily possible, and most important of all, cutting off all legislation by way of amendments to Appropriation bills, except such as strictly relates to the appropriations in the bill. This rule, except the last provision, was the results of the caucus called several days ago. The resolution was offered last Friday in the Senate by Mr. SCOTT. When it was called up today several Senators were thrown into a state of excitement, particularly Messrs. CASSERLY, STEVENSON and TRUMBULL. The point of objection was that the ancient privilege of Senators to talk as long as they chose upon any subject was assailed. STEVENSON thought it would cut off any opportunity to expose the wickedness of this Administration, and was an attempt of the majority to tyrannize over the minority. TRUMBULL made a violent speech, denouncing the majority for attempting, as he complained, to gag the minority. He made one point of some force—that under the rule as first proposed there might be attached to an Appropriation bill an amendment containing legislation to create subsidies or objectionable schemes which could not be properly exposed in five-minute speeches. This objection was obviated subsequently by the amendment excluding all such measures from the Appropriation bills. This latter provision Mr. TRUMBULL voted for, having first offered an amendment of a similar character, but so loosely drawn as to exclude only general legislation, but to let in all private schemes. No one had pretended that any injustice would be done the minority by limiting debate on the questions of appropriations, but after the effect of the bill was specifically confined in this manner, Mr. TRUMBULL and the Democrats voted against such economy of time in conducting the people's business.

SENATOR TRUMBULL AND THE SENATE CAUCUS.

The new rule was adopted, 32 to 18. Mr. TRUMBULL's attendance at the caucus first called has been remarked. It is learned that the form of notice which has been used heretofore in calling caucuses, which was an invitation to those to whom it was sent, was changed for this occasion to a simple notice that a caucus of Republican Senators would be held. This notice gave Mr. TRUMBULL an opportunity to determine for himself whether he could, while a candidate for the nomination by a new party, decently enter a Republican caucus. SCHURZ and TIPTON properly stayed away. TRUMBULL did not object to any action taken. He did not, however, attend the adjourned meeting today. Mr. SUMNER, however, did. As usual, in his action today Mr. TRUMBULL went back upon himself and took nearly opposite ground from what he held two years ago. He also objected to the Senate meeting an hour earlier each day for the remainder of the session.

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

The situation in regard to the Alabama claims remains substantially the same as stated in these dispatches last week. It is certain that telegrams have been passing the cable in reference to the affair, and it is just as certain that those dispatches have not proposed on the part of our Government any unconditional surrender, or any other kind of surrender. If the treaty is to be saved, there must be concession on both sides, and propositions for such mutual concessions are much more likely to come from the other side of the Atlantic than to go from this. There is just enough of the truth known to afford ground for speculative dispatches by imaginative persons. It is noticed as somewhat noteworthy, that papers which a few days ago were calling on our Government to withdraw its case, are now opposing the Administration on the ground of a supposed withdrawal, and its suggests that the dispatches as well as editorials are made for political use.

EXPANSION OF THE CURRENCY.

Mr. MERRIAM introduced a bill today authorizing the substitution of legal-tender notes for the three per cent. loan certificates. That this is a measure of expansion is admitted, but Mr. MERRIAM holds that some expansion is much needed. Under the present law, as fast as currency is issued to new banks in the South and West, an equal amount of three per cent. demand certificates need as bank reserves, and of which there are $14,000,000 outstanding, are canceled. The currency issued to new banks remains in the South and West, and affords no relief in the financial centres, where this contraction by cancellation of the demand notes is continually going on.

THE TARIFF.

A motion to go to the Speaker's table prevailed in the House today, and the tariff debate was thereby driven over until to-morrow, when the programme announced in these dispatches for today will be carried out. It is now conceded on all hands that the general debate cannot close on Friday, as arranged. The number of those who desire to speak increases at an alarming rate.

THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The report of the Conference Committee on the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill was defeated in the House today by one vote. This necessitates a further and disheartening delay upon the bill. The Senate conferees insist upon certain amendments, which have now been defeated in the House for the third time. One of these relates to the increase of the salaries of the Judges of the District of Columbia Courts; another authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint at his option commissioners to apportion the proceeds of certain seizures. To this proposition, as providing for informers and sneaks, the House is especially hostile.

CONNECTICUT IN THE NATIONAL GALLERY.

The statues of ROGER SHERMAN and JONATHAN TRUMBULL, which Connecticut sends to the National Gallery, were presented in the House today, Gen. KELLOGG and Mr. STARKWEATHER delivering eloquent eulogies upon the lives and public services of their earlier predecessors in the House of Representatives.

BUSINESS IN THE SENATE.

The Senate did not reach the Deficiency bill today at all, but it will be the pending business to-morrow at 1 o'clock and, under the rule adopted today, will soon be disposed of. The Free Tea and Coffee bill will next come up, according to the understanding arrived at in caucus. The caucus almost unanimously agreed to the order in which the various measures shall be taken up. The agreement does not bind any one in any way in their votes upon the bills themselves. Amnesty and Civil Rights are in the list after two or three Appropriation bills. But for the Tariff bill, the business of the session could easily be concluded by the end of May.

THE LOUISIANA DELEGATION TO CHICAGO.

The statement that the Louisiana delegation to Chicago in 1868 are all at Cincinnati must be a mistake, because one or two are now in the city, and have no notion of going there. There were fourteen of those delegates. Two of them are at Cincinnati, three others may be; but that they are, is unknown. The remaining nine certainly are not.

SUMNER DENIES THE SCOTCH CONVERSATION.

The report of a conversation with Senator SUMNER on the Cincinnati Convention, telegraphed from Washington to New-York and then back to Washington, is denounced by him unauthorized and inaccurate. The Senator says words and things are attributed to him which he never uttered.

JAPAN AND THE JAPANESE.

The news reached here today that the late Tycoon of Japan has been invited by the present reigning Emperor to come out of his late retirement, and he has accepted an appointment under the Government, accompanied by a highly complimentary title. Among the Japanese now on their way to Washington is KOTONI, the present Chief Minister of Finance of Japan. He was the leader of the rebel forces during the late revolution, but the political wise men have pardoned, and hence as well as power conferred upon him by the present Emperor, against whom he fought with determined hardiam. The gratifying news has also reached here that the father of Minister MORI has been placed at the head of an educational institution in Japan, and that a lady connected with his family has become a teacher in one of the Government schools of Japan.

NOT GOME TO CINCINNATI.

Not a Republican member of the House has gone to Cincinnati; but on the other hand, such liberal Democrats as CHENEY, MARSHALL, of Illinois, MORGAN, of Ohio, and LEW. CAMPBELL, have gone there, at least in that direction, still if not there they are going to Convention, or are shooting snipe in that neighborhood.

VISITORS TO THE PRESIDENT.

The President was called upon this morning, by a large number of the members of the Methodist General Conference, who assembled in the East Room for the purpose of paying their respects to him. There was no speech-making, the occasion being entirely informal. Many of the gentlemen were personally known to the President, and, brief, pleasant conversation characterized the affair. All were introduced and shook hands. Many of the visitors were accompanied by ladies.

THE PRESIDENT DIRECTS THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

The President was also called upon today by a delegation from New-York City, representing working men's associations, and composed of Messrs. JOHN C. GRAHAM, Grand Master of the United Order of American Bricklayers; ARTHUR MOLLOUGHLIN and MICHAEL J. DALY, who had interviews with him in regard to the working of the Eight-hour law in New-York. The delegation stated that the Eight-hour law is enforced on the work done on the New-York Post-office, and that the working men be paid the highest local wages for similar work—$4 per day. The President said that this request must be granted, and that they must be treated the same as the men employed on the public building in South Carolina, receiving a full day's pay for eight hours' work, and extra pay for extra hours which they may feel disposed to labor. Prior to the departure of this Committee, he gave them a note to the Secretary of the Treasury, asking him to HIS ORDERS to their compliance, and saying: "I have stated to the Committee that all employes of the Government are entitled to the benefits of the Eight-hour law so long as it stands on the statute-books."

The delegation afterward had an interview with Judge HOGANBOOM, who cordially received them, asking them to make a statement in writing, promising to investigate their complaint of oppe.

ALBANY.

Death of Senator Hardenbergh—Probable Vote of the Charter—The Rival Quick Transit Schemes—Current Judges—Matters.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—The proceedings in both Houses, this evening, were confined to an announcement of the death of Senator HARDENBERGH, who expired at Congress Hall, at 4½ P. M., today, after an illness which has confined him to his room for more than two months past. Mr. HARDENBURGH was serving his second term as Senator, and was regarded as the ablest man on the Democratic side in the Senate.

Mr. UNDERWOOD, the Clerk of the Assembly, was taken ill on Thursday last, and is reported to-night to be in a very dangerous condition.

It is expected that the Governor will take definite action on the Seventy's Charter to-morrow, and the impression is almost universal here that it will be vetoed.

A veto is also expected of the Beach Pneumatic Railroad bill, which was vetoed last year. Judge PORTER and GEO. TICKNOR CURTIS are to have a hearing to-morrow morning, in opposition to the bill, on behalf of the Central Underground Company, whose charter is infringed upon by the Pneumatic bill. VANDERBILT's underground quick-transit scheme, which bangs fire in the Assembly, also infringes upon the Central Under-ground, and will be subject to the same objections if it should ever reach the Governor.

It is said that the Judiciary Committee, which is to have a meeting to-morrow, will be nearly unanimous in favor of the impeachment of the Judges, and there is scarcely a doubt that their report will be indorsed by a large majority of the Assembly.

The case of MILLER will not be taken up till that of the Judges is determined. S.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Australian Mails via San Francisco—Illness of the Earl of Zetland—Rear-Admiral Inglefield—The Cowper Visit of the Grecian Empress—Liverpool Customs.

LONDON, April 29.—The Postmaster-General of New-Zealand telegraphs to the Marquis of HARTINGTON, Postmaster-General of Great Britain, that he has concluded a satisfactory partnership between the colonies of Victoria and New-Zealand for the transportation of the English mails for Australia by way of San Francisco.

Wednesday next is the regular settling day of the Bank of England, and the Stock Exchange will be closed as usual on that day.

The Earl of ZETLAND is ill.

Rear-Admiral INGLEFIELD, at present naval attaché of the British Legation at Washington, has been appointed second officer in command of the English squadron in the Mediterranean, and will have under his charge the management of the Malta dock-yard.

Her Majesty the Empress AUGUSTA, of Germany, who left Berlin today for England, will be the guest of Queen VICTORIA at Windsor Castle. The Empress will visit London next week.

LIVERPOOL, April 29.—Two thousand carmen in this city have struck work, and all business on the docks and in the warehouses is interrupted in consequence. Upward of 1,000 laborers are thrown out of work by the action of the cartmen.

FRANCE.

Two or Three of the Capitulating Generals to be Tried by Court-Martial.

PARIS, April 29.—In consequence of the report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the capitulations of French towns and fortresses during the late war, the Government has determined to put two or three Generals, who are censured by the Commission, on trial before a Court-martial.

One of the Murderers of the Hostages to be Shot—Blanqui to be Transported.

PARIS, April 29.—GRETON, convicted of participating in the slaughter of the hostages under the Commune, will be shot at Satory to-morrow morning. BLANQUI has been sentenced to transportation for life.

THE SYRIAN EARTHQUAKE.

Three Hundred Killed in Antioch, and Sixteen Hundred in the Country About.

LONDON, April 29.—Particulars of the late earthquake in Syria, which caused such a terrible loss of life, are now coming to hand. It appears that the fatalities were not the greatest in the City of Antioch, as the first dispatch intimated, but were heavier in the country in the vicinity of that city. A letter from Antioch, under date of the 4th of April, says: "The American Protestant Church was severely injured and four of the American community were killed. All the members of the families of the missionaries are safe. The number of people killed in the City of Antioch is less than 300, but it is known that 1,600 people in the surrounding towns and country—where the shocks were as severe, if not more so, than here—were killed, and this number may be increased. The distress of the people will be only temporary, as the crop prospects are good. The supply of provisions on hand is moderate."

The correspondents of the London papers praise Rev. Mr. FOWLER, as a American missionary, for his assiduity in administering to the relief of the afflicted people.

MEXICO.

Skirmishing on the Vicinity of Matamoras—The Black Flag—Tampico Pronounced for the Revolutionists.

MATAMORAS, April 20.—Skirmishing has been going on between CORTINA's men and TEVINO's advance all day, and the wounded are being brought in. The enemy is not in full force.

This morning the black flag was hoisted on the fortifications around the city, and is still floating, with cross bones and a death's head as insignia. This has created considerable indignation on both sides of the river, and apprehension is felt that if the attacking army is successful they will show no quarter.

It is rumored that the City of Tampico has pronounced for the revolutionists.

It is also rumored that Gens. CARBAJAL and OCHOA are at Linares with a strong column of Government troops advancing to attack TEVINO in the rear.

These reports, however, need confirmation.

A PATERNAL GOVERNMENT.

The Czar Looking up all Indigent and Sick Prisoners to Bring Them Home.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—Gov. HOFFMAN having received from Secretary Fish a copy of a letter from the Russian Charge to the effect that all indigent or sick Russians now in this country will be sent home at the expense of the Russian Government, and that all hospitals and other institutions having such persons in their care are requested to send to the Imperial Legation an account of any expense in their behalf, has caused the same to be made public in a proclamation to the end that the information may reach all persons, institutions or local authorities in this State who may be interested.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, April 30—1 A. M.—The barometer is highest over the New-England and Middle Atlantic States. Clear and partially cloudy weather, with easterly to southerly winds, continue over the New-England, Middle Atlantic and Southern States; cloudy and threatening weather from the lower Missouri Valley to the lower lakes and northward, with rain and easterly to southerly winds.

PROBABILITIES.

Falling barometer will prevail on Tuesday from the lakes to the Gulf and Atlantic, with cloudy weather and partially cloudy weather in the New-England, Middle Atlantic, and Southern States, and easterly to southerly winds; cloudy weather and rain from the Ohio Valley to the upper lakes, and extend eastward over the northern portion of the Middle States; brisk and possibly high winds are probable for the upper lakes and extend to the lower lakes; clearer weather and north-westerly winds for the North-west. Cautionary signals continue at Milwaukee, Chicago, Grand Haven, Detroit, Toledo and Cleveland.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF THE REV. JOHN WESLEY, M. A., by Rev. L. TYERMAN. (Vols. 1 and 2.) New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

The religious revival inaugurated in England in 1739 was undoubtedly the most important event of the kind that has taken place since the Reformation. The force of the latter had spent itself, and had been followed by an age of ecclesiastical formalism or atheistic indifference as to matters of faith, and an absence of moral restraint in social life, that have had no parallel in later days. It was the mission of this religious movement to give a higher moral tone to the feelings of an entire community, and to its direct influence can be traced not only the formation of a large and active body of Christian workers in the sect of Methodism, but the development of much that now distinguishes the Broad Branch of the Episcopal Church. The above work is intended to give a clearer and fully account than has yet been given, of the man who, more than any one else, was the guiding spirit of this movement, and the originator and conservator of its forces. JOHN WESLEY possessed the natural qualifications that in all ages have made remarkable men; with keen, vigorous intellectual powers, and a rare poetical instinct, he combined a directness and earnestness of purpose so great that he impressed the individuality of his thought both on his own works, and on those of the men with whom he was associated. His own readiness in comprehending and accepting a newly-explained truth made him often severe in his judgment of others not similarly minded, a tendency which a natural harshness of temper served to increase. His weaknesses were those of heart rather than mind, and by them his private life was embittered, and his public usefulness greatly lessened. Yet he was, nevertheless, a man fitted for the occasion, and will rank in history with CALVIN, KNOX and LUTHER.

It was not until he had arrived at his thirty-fifth year that he began what proved to be the work of his life. Previous to that time, he had been connected with that portion of the Episcopal Church that finds its counterpart at the present day in the Ritualists. Indeed, the name Methodist was given him on this account, and he was at one time subjected to no little persecution for his supposed advocacy of Roman Catholic doctrines. The desire to arouse the people of his country from the moral lethargy into which they were sinking seems to have been the mainspring of his action; and on once entering into his work, he devoted himself to it with a singleness of mind that carried everything before it. Mr. TYERMAN'S description of his life is very complete—perhaps a trifle too much so, as at some places it lapses into prolixity. He does not seek to hide the defects in the character he is describing, though from his treatment of them, as of all the events in the life of Mr. WESLEY, it is plain to see that his task has been a labor of love. The third volume, which will complete the series, will be published in a few weeks.

PREHISTORIC TIMES. By Sir JOHN LUBBOCK, M.P. New-York: D. APPLETON & Co.

No one has made more valuable additions to our knowledge of anthropology, or the science of man, than the author of the above work, the second edition of which has just been published. The subject is one which of necessity interests every one; and its treatment by Sir JOHN offers to the student the best possible opportunity of acquainting himself with the opinions entertained by the advocates of the theory of evolution. The distinct ideas which the author wishes to advance are these: That mankind have resided on the earth much longer than is generally admitted (he offers no personal opinion on the subject, but lets the reader draw his own inferences from the facts presented.) That when the first being that could be called man appeared on the earth he was, in mental and moral ignorance, far below any savage races now existing. That there is no reason for supposing that the most degraded savage races of the present day were ever in a more civilized condition than they are at present. This, in rough, is the author's argument, and though at first it may not seem that there could be much objection against its acceptation, yet a little reflection will show that it is in complete contradiction to the Scriptural account of the early life and fall of man. The reader of this work will be pleased with the simple, clear manner in which the facts are presented, and will admire the candor of the author, even though his conclusion should be wholly different from those the former seeks to sustain.

PRACTICAL DAIRY HUSBANDRY. By Prof. WILLARD.

In a country like ours where dairy farming is only in its infancy, a work like the above is of great practical value. It is clear and succinct, and full of real information; it inculcates thorough cleanliness in the care of dairy cows, and also furnishes facts concerning the various points of good milkers, illustrated by engravings. The remarks on the home and foreign markets are essential to those butter and cheese factors who annually produce large quantities, from the instruction they afford as to the wishes of all classes of customers.

THE CENTURIES OF ENGLISH LITERATURE, by CHARLES DUKE YONGE. New-York: D. APPLETON & Co.

This work is intended either as a text-book in colleges, or for private use, as it offers a ready means of acquiring a fair knowledge of the characteristics that have individualized the principal English writers during the last 800 years. It is utterly impossible to obtain a true conception of the early poets and dramatists without a careful study of their works, but to those who have not the time or patience to do this the above work supplies the best substitute we have yet seen.

DUNBAR ON THE HORSE.

We are glad to be able to speak well of this work, especially as regards the treatment of the horse's hoof. The remarks on shoeing coincide completely with articles recently published in our columns,—that is, Mr. DUNBAR'S system teaches the ignorant farrier and prejudiced, ignorant horse-owner to conform to the laws of nature, and not to abuse the animal's feet by the use of badly-made, ill-fitted shoes. The remarks on breeding, &c., are plain and sensible.

THE ODYSSEY OF HOMER. Translated into English blank verse by WM. CULLEN BRYANT. Boston: JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co.

Mr. BRYANT'S translation of the Odyssey is one of the highest evidences of classical scholarship that America has yet furnished. It needs but brief critical examination to prove that the work has been faithfully done; and certainly the results are greater than we had expected, even from one of such acknowledged ability as the translator.

POCKET-BOOK OF MECHANICS AND ENGINEERING. By JOHN W. NYSTROM, C. E. (Eleventh edition.) Philadelphia: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co.

A book that has passed through so many editions needs little assurance of its worth, but from a slight study of this we should say that it more that deserved the favor it has received. It is a compendium of almost every art and industry into which mechanical information enters, and will be found of great use as a reference book by all business men.

THE STENOGRAPHER'S PAY.

Argument on the Application for a Mandamus Against the Board of Audit—A Mandamus to Issue.

The matter of the application of ROBERT BONTOUX, one of the Court stenographers, for a mandamus to compel the Board of Audit and Apportionment to make an appropriation to pay the relator his salary for the first four months of the current year, again came before the Supreme Court, Chambers yesterday. The case of Mr. BONTOUX is intended as a test case, and the decision therein will govern the claims of nine other stenographers of the State Civil Courts. Judge BRADY, before whom the motion first came on Friday last, being absent, Judge BARRETT occupied the Bench, and heard the argument instead. In bringing the motion to the attention of the Court, Mr. ABRAHAM R. LAWRENCE, who appeared for the relator, recited the acts under which payment was directed to be made, and also the facts sworn to in the moving affidavits, as already published in the TIMES.

Mr. STRAHAN, on behalf of the Board of Audit, opposed the application, claiming that the moving papers failed to show the amount on hand of the fund provided to be received from the fees paid in on behalf of litigants; that the provisions of the act authorized the Board of Audit to make appropriations out of the fund for county contingencies, only for so much as was necessary after deducting the amount so collected; that the moving papers also failed to show that any fund existed for the purpose of county contingencies out of which to make the appropriation even if it appeared that there was a deficiency as contemplated by statute; that the appropriation for county contingencies was limited to seven and a half millions for the first four months of the present year, and there was no evidence in the relator's papers that that fund had not been exhausted. As to the point which he anticipated would be urged on behalf of the relator, that the power of the Board to appropriate would end with the last of the present month, he contended that no such interpretation could be given to the statute; the present Board had only made a three month's appropriation for the Judiciary and contingencies, and would it be contended that because a new Board came into power on the 1st of May, therefore the Judges would have to go without their pay for the month of April? He would again repeat that it was not intended to impede the payment of these claims, but the Board of Audit were now engaged in an investigation as to how many had been received by the clerks of the different Courts as stenographers' fees under the statute, and whether this money had been turned in to the City Treasurer, as required by law.

Judge BARRETT—What is the difficulty in relation to this inquiry? Cannot the information be obtained at once by asking the Clerks of the Courts?

Mr. STRAHAN replied that that was not sufficient; the Board desired to investigate themselves.

Mr. LAWRENCE in reply said, the moving papers showed that Mr. GREEN and Mr. EARLE, his subordinate, had both admitted there were no funds on hand for the payment of the claims, and the Court was bound to take this as the fact unless the defendants came in and contradicted it by affidavit. These men were entitled to their salary. They were, as his Honor knew, indispensable in transacting the business of the Court with proper dispatch; they had faith fully earned their pay; and were not bound to wait for it while the Board of Audit were making investigations of any kind whatever.

Judge BARRETT thought the alleged admission of the Controller and his subordinate that he had no funds out of which to pay this claim, would afford the Court a sufficient guide.

Mr. STRAHAN asked that he have an opportunity to furnish an affidavit of Controller GREEN to the effect that he never made the alleged statement that he had no funds out of which to pay.

Judge BARRETT said he would grant him this privilege, provided the affidavit also contained a statement of the amount which was now on hand, received from payments made under these issue had been joined during the present year.

Mr. STRAHAN said he could not agree to furnish this, as no moneys came into the Controller's hands, but only into the hands of the City Treasurer.

Mr. LAWRENCE said that the statute specifically directed that the money deposited as stenographers' fees, on filing notes of issue, should be paid to the Controller, whose duty it was to turn it over to the City Treasurer, and that, therefore, knowledge of the amount so deposited must be readily accessible to him.

Judge BARRETT said he thought justice required that the Board should be allowed to move on plaintiff's papers, and they showing that the Controller admitted he had no funds on hand out of which to pay these claims, if the counsel for the Board was permitted now to present an affidavit denying that admission by the Controller, he should allow the same to close the question whether moneys of money was on hand for this purpose. He would therefore allow counsel during the afternoon to furnish such affidavit, with the understanding that if it did not contain such affirmative statement, it would be rejected by the Court, and a mandamus would issue to compel an appropriation for the full amount claimed. If it did contain such statement, and the amount was less than that claimed, then the mandamus would direct an appropriation only for the balance.

Another Mandamus Asked For.

In the case of JAMES L. CROSBY, a stenographer of Part III, Supreme Court, an order of mandamus was asked for to compel payment of eight months' back pay, but the Court declined to hear further argument on the question.

The Wooster-street Fire—Testimony Before the Fire Marshal.

Fire Marshal MCSPEDON was engaged yesterday in making an investigation into the origin of the fire at EVERTS'S organ factory, Nos. 24 and 26 Wooster-street, on Saturday evening, by which two men named JOHN and JAMES MCSHERRY lost their lives. FRANCIS BERNARD, who was working in the place, testified that he belonged to the Tailors' Republic Association; there were eight tailors in the place, who were dressing themselves preparatory to leaving for the night, when the fire and smoke burst through the floor near the head of the stairway; there was a bottle on the roof with a ladder leading to it, but the men could not reach it; the witness made his escape down the stairway; the MCSHERRYS could have escaped had they not been entrightened; all the men in the shop were sober. Several other witnesses were examined, but nothing material was elicited.

The loss of the Tailors' Association is estimated at $6,000; insured for $3,000 in the Narragansett Company of Providence, R. I., and the Lancaster, of Pennsylvania.

Mr. EVERTS estimates his loss at $20,000; insured for $11,000.

The loss on the building is estimated at $6,000, and is fully covered by insurance.

FORTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE.—WASHINGTON, Monday, April 29.

Mr. ANTHONY presented a remonstrance, signed by the Admiral and other officers of the navy, against the transfer of officers from the retired to the active list without the recommendation of the Department; and also against the advancement of officers by legislation, without such recommendation.

FIVE-MINUTE SPEECHES ON THE APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. SCOTT moved to take up the resolution to limit debate on the Appropriation bills to five minutes for each Senator speaking.

Mr. TRUMBULL opposed the resolution. Some of the most important laws, he said, were enacted as amendments to Appropriation bills, and the adoption of this rule would deprive the majority in carrying any measure they chose against five minutes' debate by each Senator opposed to it.

Mr. VICKERS offered an amendment restricting the five-minute rule to debate on amendments germane to the bill. Lost.

Mr. TRUMBULL said that the vote on this amendment showed the real design of the majority in offering the pending resolution, namely, to get a gag law by which they could ram any measure they pleased, through the Senate, as an amendment to an appropriation without a discussion.

At the expiration of the morning hour Mr. SCOTT moved to lay the resolution aside temporarily so as to dispose of the pending resolution.

Mr. TRUMBULL objected.

Mr. SCOTT then moved to lay the unfinished business on the table. Agreed—Yeas 29, nays 17.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the resolution.

Mr. CASSERLY—I regret with the Senator from Illinois (Mr. TRUMBULL) that the vote that has just been taken reveals the design of the majority in offering this resolution. When I came up here this morning I heard rumors of one of those dark assemblies unknown to the law and to the Constitution.

Mr. CONKLING—In violation of both, I suppose.

Mr. CASSERLY—I did not say that, Sir, but I do say they are a standing menace to the Constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof. They are a standing menace against all freedom of opinion and action on the part of members of this body. Yes, Sir, I heard this morning that the majority had held a caucus and the vote that has just been taken confirms the rumor. There are members listening to me and who favor this resolution who remember the time when they were in the minority in the Senate, and I ask them if any such gag as this was ever put into their mouths?

Mr. TRUMBULL said that the manner in which it was sought to pass this resolution was in harmony with the resolution itself. It was sought that a rule calculated to obstruct the action of the Senate should be forced through without debate. He had served in the minority in the Senate when the disorganizing majority of that day attempted to force the minority to vote on the Lecompton bill without discussion, and they had to resort to the most unmanageable means. But even that majority, in the height of their power, never thought of adopting a gag rule like this.

Mr. COLE said this rule must be adopted before the Christmas nominations, or there would be no possibility of doing any business, as every opportunity would be taken after that to indulge in political debate.

Mr. WILSON was unable to see any danger in the proposed rule, and he thought it idle to say that it would prevent legitimate debate, because every Senator would be at liberty to discuss as fully as he pleased all bills on the question of their final passage.

Mr. TRUMBULL asked Mr. WILSON whether he had not within two years offered a bill nominating the army officers and then added an appropriation bill, and whether it had not been passed.

Mr. WILSON replied in the affirmative, but again denied that there was anything in the proposed rule that would interfere with the full discussion of a bill or its passage when it should be in the public interest. Still, rather than have the idea entertained by Senators or by the people that it was designed to interfere with the rights of the minority, he would prefer that the resolution should be referred to the Committee, although he believed that some such rule must be adopted in order to dispatch the business of the Senate.

Mr. MORRON advocated the resolution, and in reply to the charge that it would cut off debate, he pointed out that the rule was to be limited to this session, now nearly ended; that it was to be confined to one class of bills, namely, appropriation bills, and that it was to them; and then, after any such bill should have been amended and put upon its passage, every Senator would be as free to discuss the bill as now, as if no rule had been adopted. The resolution was necessary for the dispatch of business, and as to its being dangerous or the result of any deep-laid scheme, he was not aware of it and did not believe it, and he was not going to be deterred from voting for what he thought right by any political clamor without any foundation. For one he had no fear that this rule if adopted would do injustice.

Mr. CASSERLY said that Mr. MORRON, being a member of a caucus which had the majority, could do this or any other rule, because if it stood in his way he could have it suspended; but he seemed to forget that what was sport for him might be death to the minority.

Mr. SCOTT said Mr. CASSERLY had asked what this resolution meant, and he would reply that it meant business.

Mr. CASSERLY said he had no doubt of that, but the question was, what kind of business?

Mr. SHERMAN said he believed that if this experiment was once tried, nobody in the Senate would desire to go back to the old system of unlimited debate. There was a time when Senators would rise and ask some form of "previous question," and he thought it highly desirable that the Senate should adopt something of that kind to check the tendency to endless and wearisome debate, which had been growing for years. He was not in favor of the proposition to limit legislation caused by the wearisome night sessions, into which, under the present rule, a few determined Senators could force the body, that by anything else, and, if he had the power, he would prohibit it; but he ought to have the power to control the action of the Senate.

Mr. TRUMBULL said that the right to discuss an appropriation bill on its passage after it had been amended, under this five-minute rule, was only the right to discuss a measure after it had been adopted—a right which it would not be either pleasant or profitable to exercise.

Mr. CASSERLY offered a substitute providing that no amendment to an appropriation bill shall be in order unless it is germane to the bill and provides for an appropriation of public money in pursuance of existing laws. Rejected—Yeas 11, nays 35.

Mr. TRUMBULL offered an amendment providing that no amendment proposing general legislation not germane to the bill shall be offered to an appropriation bill. Rejected—Yeas 12, nays 34.

Mr. EDMUNDS moved to add to the original resolution the following: "And no amendment to any such bill making legislative provisions other than such as shall directly relate to the appropriations contained in the bill shall be received by any Senator." Agreed—Yeas 34, nays 12.

The resolution as amended was then adopted by a vote of 32 yeas to 13 nays, Messrs. ALCORN, BORMAN, SUMNER, and TRUMBULL voting in the negative.

The question then came on the resolution that during the present session it shall be in order at any time to move a recess, and, pending an appropriation bill, to move to confine debate to amendments thereto to five minutes, and, pending the motion to recess or to adjourn, such motion shall be decided without debate; no amendment to any such bill making legislative provisions other than such as directly relate to the appropriations in the bill shall be received.

The Senate then at 5 o'clock P. M. adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The House met at 11 o'clock, as it will during the remainder of the session.

Under the call of states a number of unimportant bills were introduced and referred, several of them having been reported at the last session of the Democratic members, so as to have no time in the morning hour for action on HOOPER'S supplementary Civil Rights bill.

TO FACILITATE PAYMENT OF DUTIES.

Among the bills introduced and referred was one by Mr. WOOD, to regulate and facilitate the payment of the duties on imported merchandise, by authorizing that for the purpose of facilitating and aiding the transactions of importers of merchandise with the Government in the payment of duties, the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at the port of New-York is authorized and empowered to receive gold on deposit and allow the owner or owners thereof to check on the same for payment of duties only. Provided, that such gold can be withdrawn, or any balance remaining of the same, by the owners thereof, of in one check on the Assistant Treasurer of the United States, and renewed again.

BILLS PASSED.

Mr. HALE introduced a bill appropriating $80,000 for a Custom-house building at Rockland, Me. After explanation it was passed.

A bill to remove legal and political disabilities from S. H. ROGERS, member elect from the Raleigh District of North Carolina, was reported by Mr. PETERS, from the Judiciary Committee and passed.

AN INQUIRY.

Mr. FARNSWORTH offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds to inquire to what extent purchases have been made or public buildings erected, repaired or furnished without advertisement. Adopted.

TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILROAD.

Mr. WHEELER moved to suspend the rules and take up the conference report on the bill supplementary to the act of the 3d of March, 1871, to incorporate the Texas Pacific Railroad Company, changing the title to that of Texas and Pacific Railway Company, and making the provisions of the act of mortgage and land-grant bonds. The motion was agreed to without division, and various verbal amendments, reported from the Committee on the Pacific Railroad, were adopted.

After some explanation and discussion, during which it was stated by Mr. WHEELER that the bill did not increase the land grant, the bill was passed—106 to 23.

THE CENTENNIAL.

A bill prepared by the Commissioners of the Centennial Celebration of the Declaration of Independence, to be held in Philadelphia in 1876, was introduced by Mr. L. MYERS, incorporating a company for the erection of Exposition buildings and other purposes. After some discussion it was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, with instructions to report as incorporators the names of two persons from each Congressional district, four from each State at large, and two from each Territory.

JUDICIAL AND OTHER APPROPRIATIONS.

The House then took up the report of the Conference Committee on the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill, and, after considerable discussion, the report was rejected—Yeas 80, nays 81—the principal objection to it being the provision for an increase of the salaries of several executive officers and of the Judges of the Court of Claims. The bill was recommitted to the same Conference Committee.

Mr. TOWNSEND, of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported a substitute for the Senate bill releasing to the State of Indiana the lands known as the "Bed of Beaver Lake," in Newton County, Indiana. Passed.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS DISPOSED OF.

The House then, at 2½ o'clock P. M., went to the business on the Speaker's table, and disposed of the cases as follows: The Senate amendment to the House bill for the employment of surfmen at alternate life-saving stations on the New-Jersey coast. Concurred in.

The Senate amendment to the House bill authorizing the Commissioners of Southern Claims to appoint special Commissioners to take testimony. Concurred in.

The Senate amendment to the House bill for the relief of settlers on the Osage lands in Kansas. Concurred in.

The Senate amendment to the House bill extending for two years the time of payment by preemption settlers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Dakota. Concurred in.

The Senate amendment to the House bill to provide for the preservation of the mining resources of the United States. Concurred in.

MONDAY, April 29—P. M.

The orders from the Treasury Department to the New-York Office this morning to sell $10,000,000 Gold Coin in May, $2,000,000 every Thursday, together with the disbursements of the month on the May Gold Interest and on the Principal of United States 5-20s of 1862, called in but not yet presented, afford assurance that there will be no scarcity of Gold for export and no need of anything like an extravagant premium in the Gold Room. The three sources of the supply from the Treasury, where the present balance is $104,000,000, exclusive of provision for outstanding Gold Notes, are as follows:

To pay Principal of 1867 Bonds	$20,000,000
Interest in May on Public Debt	15,000,000
Weekly sales of the month	10,000,000
Together	$45,000,000
Less five weeks' Customs	35,000,000
Net supply	$10,000,000

The announcement from the Treasury this morning, notwithstanding this situation of the supply to meet the export and speculative demand, was not suffered by the Bulls in the Gold Room—the same parties who are heavily short of Stocks—to depress the market. They came in as large buyers at 112½@112¾@112⅝ ₩ cent, taking on the early operations of the Room from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. It is given out that their theory is that the Treasury will not be able to reinvest the Currency proceeds of the $10,000,000 ordered sold in May, as United States 5-20s will be kept higher than Gold, and therefore a lock-up of Currency in the Treasury is probable. There is really nothing in this calculation so far as the Bank movement and the price of Money are concerned. Since the aggregate total sum of Gold Notes to be issued on the sales of Gold and the payments of Interest and Principal of the Public Debt is nearly three times as large as the withdrawals of Gold for shipment are likely to be. The surplus of Gold Notes necessarily go into Bank, to the help of the Lawful Money of the general movement, unless a lock-up of Gold Notes outside the Banks is attempted—a pretty desperate experiment to affect the Stock and Money markets while Money in every shape is coming in from the country to swell the Summer balances in the City Banks. The movement in the Gold Room today is said to be clearly traced to the SMITH-GOULD clique, who, through their confederate Brokers, are heavily short and large borrowers of the Railroad Stocks and Pacific Mail, and the whole affair of speculating in Gold, under present circumstances, is regarded by the Street as only another evidence of their recent unprofitable complications on the Stock Exchange. Late in the day Gold sold as 112¾ ₩ cent. The rate for Money among the Brokers is 7 ₩ cent., and the supply from lenders quite easy. Exchange on London was something less firm than on Saturday, 60 days 109½@109¾ ₩ cent.

On the Stock Exchange the Public Funds continue strong, and only a few of the 5-20s Registered and none of the Coupon are rating, (including accrued interest,) below the current price of Gold. The New 5 ₩ cent. Loan is 112 ₩ cent., with 11 ₩ cent. Interest included in the price. The 5-20s of 1867, January and July, are 115¾ ₩ cent., including four months or 3 ₩ cent. Gold Interest. In the Railway Stocks there is an active and, generally speaking, very strong speculation. The marked exception today was North-west Common, in which the bearish interest is both conspicuous and persistent, large amounts of the Stock being loaned out by its owners, who seem apparently indifferent as to its present market price. The three lighter fancies of the list, Ohios, C. C. & I. C. and Union Pacific were all active in demand and upward in price. A new version is given of the movement in C. C. and Indiana Central Stock, to the effect that so far from being in the interest of the Pennsylvania Company, is looking in another direction, to wit: by a change of Directors in June to take the line out of Pennsylvania control, (the present lease being surrounded with various conditions, susceptible of alteration,) and to make it, hereafter, in a large measure, subsidiary to the Erie and Atlantic and Great Western Roads, as an outlet to Chicago. This theory of the great activity and rapid advance in the Stock finds countenance in certain purchases last week, traced to the new Erie and Old Atlantic and Great Western people. The Lake Shore, New-York Central and Rock Island Stocks were firm. The Express Stocks advanced to 78 for the United States, and 85 for Wells-Fargo. Pacific Mail and Telegraph were comparatively quiet at well-sustained prices.

The New-York Times.

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge, given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, recognizing the claims of American industry in adjusting the sources of revenue; and it will advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly edition; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

To Advertisers.

☞ For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 23d-st., junction of Broadway and 6th-av.; No. 308 West 23d-st., opposite Grand Opera-house, and No. 1,241 Broadway, between 30th and 31st sts., at same rates as are charged at office of publication.

☞ The NEW-YORK TIMES has opened a branch office in Brooklyn at No. 44 Court-st opposite the City Hall, where advertisements will be received until 5 P. M.

☞ Advertisements for the WEEKLY TIMES must be handed in before 12 o'clock this evening.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. The dispatches we are now receiving from Cincinnati and other points in the West afford examples of the thorough and impartial manner in which our correspondents will perform their work. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

Our merchants, who have been so seriously inconvenienced by Congressional delay in relation to the tea and coffee tax, will be glad to learn that action by the Senate upon the same bill at an early day has been agreed on in caucus. This determination will be likely also to move the House to greater expedition touching the Tariff bill, for, should the measure now before the Senate become a law, the Ways and Means Committee's Tariff bill would be thrown into hopeless confusion, and all the labor expended on it would be useless. Between the two, therefore, the merchants may hope that a definite decision may be reached. This, if we understand them, is what the merchants want.

There is a peculiar appropriateness in Senator FENTON's officiating as the representative of the Protectionists in the farce now going on at Cincinnati. No one could make the shameful bargains necessary to patch up a compromise on the tariff question better than he. He would be wholly unembarrassed by any consideration of principle, for a sincere conviction on any public question is foreign to his mind. He would quite enjoy cooking up the resolution which is to be satisfactory to all parties, and would know well how to make it appear to say several things and really to say nothing. We advise Messrs. HORACE WHITE and EDWARD ATKINSON and DAVID A. WELLS to leave the matter to the New-York Senator. No one with a conscience could do the wretched job half so well.

It is authoritatively stated that Don CARLOS is not in Spain—yet the cable transmits, also, the decided statement of the Pretender's proclamation that he is able once more "to kiss the sacred soil of his country." The two assertions can only be reconciled in the way selected by the Scotchman, who was so strongly attached to the soil of his country that he carried a supply of it with him into England, inside his boots. The only feature of real importance in the telegrams from Spain is the announcement that the Republicans are co-operating with the Government. In this case the Court of MADRID, Don CARLOS, CHARLES VII., or whatever else he chooses to call himself, had better retire to Geneva again.

The Cincinnati Convention.

The Convention which is to assemble tomorrow at Cincinnati, will be one of the minor curiosities of our political history. Seldom has an equally large body of men met together animated by so many hostile views, and yet aiming to accomplish a definite purpose. They have no sentiment in common, except that which is suggested by personal animosity toward President GRANT. They are not agreed upon any one important principle. Great parties have ere now sprung suddenly into existence, but it has been because they grasped some urgent necessity of the day, and perceived the drift of public opinion, and gave it practical expression. There is no such basis of union at Cincinnati. No two of the leaders want precisely the same thing—indeed, almost any two that can be singled out want very opposite things. One asks for Free Trade; another insists upon a continuance of the Protectionist policy. One sincerely wishes to accomplish reform in the general administration of affairs; another aims rather at making the administration more loose than it has been in bygone times, in order that clamorous followers may be rewarded with "offices." The disputants come before the public without measures and without men. Mr. MURAT HALSTEAD, according to a correspondent, thinks that "GREELEY, GRATZ BROWN, TRUMBULL, and even JOHN M. PALMER are experimentalists." He is in favor of ADAMS. "Col." GROSVENOR—if we must call him Colonel—is reported to have applied very offensive language to Mr. ADAMS, and says that there is a "curl of the lip" discernible in his recent letter. The same distinguished person is adverse to GREELEY or DAVIS. The Tribune's correspondent complained on Saturday that the "politician element, which at first held aloof, now * * * come boldly to the front, and insolently demand the management." This correspondent also reports that Mr. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS' outspoken letter "is regarded as frivolous and undignified." If order is ultimately brought out of this chaos, we need not say that the era of miracles is past.

When personal grievances or impracticable theories form the sole bond of union between men who are striving to produce the dismemberment of a great and powerful party, it is almost superfluous to speculate upon the probabilities of their success. The conditions of success are entirely absent from their enterprise. The older politicians who are going to Cincinnati have not the slightest sympathy with the purposes of the handful of well-meaning philosophers who have been led into the movement. It would be an insult to the common sense of the people to tell them that Senator FENTON is inspired by considerations of the public welfare, or that, if he could gratify his ambition, he would elevate the tone of the public service. His nominees to office have always been drawn from the lowest ranks of our most disreputable politicians. There will, of course, be much better men than FENTON at Cincinnati, but their number is small and their influence is still smaller. They are dissatisfied with what they see around them, and think that an improvement is to be effected by abolishing party government, and conducting the affairs of the country by means of spasmodic consultations of theorists and visionaries. Men of this kind are often gifted with a strong literary faculty, and would receive respectful attention in any debating society. Sometimes they throw out a suggestion which deserves to be brought down from the clouds and introduced into human affairs. But their Utopia if desirable, is impracticable; and amid a discordant and mercenary faction they are generally treated with the gentle toleration which in Oriental countries is extended to persons who are not quite right in their wits. The doctrinaires will return from Cincinnati with a painful conviction that their names have lent a certain kind of respectability to a "movement" which they never had the least chance of directing. They will be allowed to pursue shadows, while the FENTONS and GROSVENORS grasp the substance. The astute managers at Cincinnati have no objection to the presence among them of etherial pilgrims, whose heads are in the empyrean, and who are fitted to adorn a brighter world than ours. But we can all imagine the scorn with which an old political trickster like FENTON must regard these superior beings who have dropped from the firmament. The principles which they profess would never penetrate into the thick fibre of his mind. There is not a more unpromising place for sublimated theories than Cincinnati at this moment.

We have always maintained, and still believe, that reform can be better carried out by a great party than by a few individuals detached from it. It is, therefore, with the Philadelphia Convention—the authorized Convention of the Republican Party—that we have cast in our lot. We hold it to be the duty of every man who wishes to avoid the transfer of power to the Democrats to accept the decision of that Convention. Unless allegiance to party is to be a mere pretense, we have no right to set up stray tents in the wilderness, and try to become leaders of separate and jarring confederacies. The Democrats still keep up the illusion that they may be induced to support the Cincinnati nominee. But they doubtless see, what is obvious to everybody else, that their best chance would be to get two Republican tickets in the field, and then to run in a man of their own. The eccentric or selfish politicians who are going to Cincinnati to regenerate mankind are determined to carry out this programme. They will beat GRANT with a Republican if they can; if they cannot, they will certainly defeat a Democrat to beat him. Unless the people are very indifferent to their own interests, they will stand aloof from this scheme. It will be easy enough to unsettle the whole commerce of the country, and throw all public affairs into dangerous confusion, by co-operating with the Cincinnati faction. But the perils of such a scheme would not be compensated for by its novelty. If the Republican Party is to succeed next November, it can only be by remaining true to the resolves of its representatives at Philadelphia. The Cincinnati men would lead us straight into the Democratic fastnesses, and then turn round and ask each other, "Who would have thought it?" It is better not to leave the straight road and the firm ground.

Shall the Streets be Cleaned?

The plague of dust grows worse and worse, in spite of the occasional efforts of the watering carts to induce Broadway and the leading avenues to return to that estate of muddy misery in which BROWN left them all Winter. If the warm, dry weather continues the state of things will be even worse. The surface mud in the middle of the streets has so far been pretty thoroughly converted into dust, but there are yet vast deposits of mud in the gutters, and huge mounds of festering filth piled along the sides of the less frequented streets, which are yet to be dried and added to the dust-cloud. Meanwhile, the annoyance of the dust is unbearable. Cleanliness is as impossible as it is said to be in Pittsburg. Men's beards grow heavy with accumulated dust after ten minutes' exposure to the open air, and thick deposits of pulverized earth and animal matter collect in creases of ladies' dresses. The public health suffers as well as the public comfort and sense of decency. And in the midst of it all, BROWN draws his pay and does nothing.

Every day that this fellow remains in the station which he abuses is a disgrace to the community. There must surely be some means by which BROWN, who cannot be argued or shamed into decency, can be effectually put down. What says Mr. GREEN to the suggestion of withholding BROWN's pay, and what says the Board of Health to the proposal that it order the streets to be at once thoroughly cleaned on its own responsibility? Even if Mr. GREEN and the Board of Health have no direct authority to help their fellow-citizens in this matter, they may be sure that any action which will give us clean streets and save us from an epidemic, will be sustained by ninety-nine men out of a hundred. The streets must be cleaned at any cost, and since BROWN stands in the way, the sooner he is shoved out of it the better.

Gov. Hoffman and the Charter.

The impression has become pretty general that Gov. HOFFMAN will veto the New-York City charter. The ground of the Governor's disapproval of the charter is said to be its cumulative voting clauses. As the entire cohesion of the charter depends on these being retained, there will in the very probable event of an Executive veto, be no opportunity, even were there time, for any attempt at legislative amendment. The charter must either be passed over the Governor's veto, or it must be abandoned for the session. Should Gov. HOFFMAN be able to sustain his veto by the opinion of one or more of the Judges of the Court of Appeals, or should he be able to cite some other legal opinions which the Legislature could not safely set aside on the question of unconstitutionality, then the only possible course would be to admit the veto to be just. On the other hand, should the Governor's disapproval of the bill be evidently dictated by the desire to place himself in line with the members of his party in the Legislature, who have all but unanimously opposed the charter, then the Republican majority in both Houses would obviously be entitled to disregard the veto, and to frankly accept the responsibility of passing the charter as it stands.

The arguments against the constitutionality of minority representation, which have, so far, been made public, have been of a somewhat flimsy character. They have, it is true, been concurred in by jurists of great experience and unblemished character, but we have not seen anything cited to show that the minority principle is contrary to the spirit of the State Constitution which can at all compare in closeness of reasoning and in weight of authority with the opinion of Prof. DWIGHT, that it is in perfect harmony with both spirit and letter of that Constitution. In any case, it is a question on which both the Legislature and the people of New-York must be guided by the highest legal authority attainable. The common sense of the community has already pronounced, in very emphatic terms, in favor of a principle which prevents 501 men getting the representation which belongs to 1,000, leaving the remaining 499 hopelessly disfranchised. If the Constitution does not admit an act of political justice like this, then the sooner the Constitution is modified in the interest of progress and reform the better.

We can afford to wait for a Constitutional amendment. We cannot afford to wait for a reorganization of the local Government of New-York. If it should be clearly proved that the passage of the charter would result in interminable legal conflicts between the elected of the people and the appointed of Tammany, in which the latter would have the weight of legal opinion in their favor, then the Legislature must make immediate provision for a new choice of local officials under the existing charter. The new Election law should be immediately recommitted, so that the clauses based on the minority scheme, and on the Boards constituted by the charter, should be expunged, and the bill framed in such a shape that, whether it suits the Governor or not, it can be passed. Then the one hundred and third section of the Seventy's Charter, so far, at least, as it relates to the retirement from office of the present heads of Departments, Commissioners, and other City officials, should be at once enacted; as also another clause providing for the election of a new Mayor on the Fourth Friday in May. Under TWEED's charter, the members of the Aldermanic Boards are practical nonentities, so far as their influence over the chief function of local government is concerned. The majority of the present Boards have developed too many Tammany affiliations to render them worthy of public confidence; but it is questionable whether better men could be secured for a position which, for another year at least, must remain of comparatively little importance. A new election for Aldermen cannot, therefore, be called a vital necessity. The Reformers of the City can elect a Mayor pledged to man the Departments with officials who are both able and honest. TWEED's charter places everything on the hazard of this die; and if we cannot have the Seventy's Charter, then we must resolutely face the risk of putting a man who can be absolutely trusted into the Mayor's chair.

With a brief addition, giving the Mayor the power of removal for cause, we should, under such a provisional act as we have referred to, be able to get through another year without being grossly plundered. Proceedings of impeachment against the Judges begin on Wednesday. If the new charter must go to the wall, the Legislature must have another forty-eight hours at least to provide for the crying necessities of the City of New-York. We have not given up hope of the charter; but there is so imperative a necessity that the Legislature should be prepared for any event, that we have admitted the possibility of the worst.

The Law Concerning Public Corruption.

It is remarkable that the great movement against the Tammany corruptionists was crippled not only by the fact that, at the time, very many of the legal instrumentalities for the punishment of fraud and the recovery of stolen public property were in the control of the Ring, but by the further fact that the law itself was very defective. This is to be accounted for in two ways. In the first place, the art of public thieving was comparatively unknown in the days when our State Constitution was formed, and no definite and adequate provision with reference to it was incorporated in that instrument. In the second place, the legislative power in this State had been, up to last Autumn, for a number of years undergoing a process of demoralization, and instead of the growing and spreading corruption meeting with any serious attempt to forestall or remedy it, it succeeded in actually surrounding itself with legislative safeguards. Specimens of this startling fact were the Two per Cent. Tax Levy fraud, the revenue bonds fraud, and the fraud, complex in form, but with a common motive, involved in the New-York charter; while still bolder strides were attempted in the famous amendments to the Code.

During the attempts at prosecution of the members of the Ring within the last six months, many of the legal obstacles in the way of justice have come to light, and Mr. SAMUEL J. TILDEN, who has been intimately acquainted with some of the suits, has introduced in the Legislature a bill to remedy some of the most obvious and dangerous defects of the law. It aims especially at the evil of local elective Judiciary, subject to political influence, and necessarily more or less closely identified with the dominant politicians of any given district. In New-York this is, of course, the principal difficulty; and although its continuance will be to some extent prevented by the impeachment and removal of the most notoriously corrupt Judges, yet it is only right that proper general provision should be made for the future and for the whole State.

The bill commences by giving the people of the State a defined right of action against the three classes of persons who are always to be found engaged in a public peculation: First, against all who receive public money or property wrongfully; second, against all who pay it out to the first class; and third, against all who, while holding offices of public trust, aid, abet, or permit such wrongful appropriation. Next in order, to make the right of action in these cases available, in spite of the influence of political or personal interests on the action of an elective Judiciary, the bill makes it the duty of the Court of Appeals, or, in case the Court is not in session, of the Chief Judge of that Court, on motion of the Attorney-General, to designate a Justice of the Supreme Court of a district other than that in which the frauds affording the basis of the action have occurred, to try the suits brought. The right to bring this class of suits is lodged with the Attorney-General, and it is made his duty to bring them on the written request of the Governor. The same principle which allows the substitution of a Judge out of the district is applied to appeals to the General Term, the designation of the department to which an appeal may be taken being placed with the Court of Appeals.

To make the law more immediately and practically valuable, the provisions touching suits for the recovery of money fraudulently obtained, paid out, or permitted to be paid out, are made to apply to all pending suits.

The tenth section of the act makes the fraudulent reception by any one, or the fraudulent disbursement, or the permission of fraudulent disbursement by a public officer, a felony. The present law makes it, if we are not mistaken, only a misdemeanor.

Provision is also made for giving the remedy by attachment in cases of fraud in respect of public money or property.

The bill strikes us as a very careful measure, the importance of which cannot be well exaggerated. It provides well-considered remedies for obvious and great evils, and it deserves the approval of the Legislature. It is high time that our laws on this subject became the means of repressing and punishing, not of fostering and screening, frauds on that patient and now sadly crippled sufferer—the public.

Then and Now.

The military conduct of Gen. Don CARLOS BUELL was investigated by a Court of Inquiry nearly ten years since. At that time Mr. GREELEY was a strong partisan of the Administration. Commenting upon Gen. BUELL two years subsequently to the meeting of the Court of Inquiry, Mr. GREELEY said that if one of his fellow soldiers "had acted substantially as BUELL did he would long ago have been shot as a deserter." * * * He is neither a coward nor an imbecile, but simply a Copperhead." * * * He was "brought before a Court of Inquiry, where he was rather too smart for his prosecutor; but one request always started his temper—that was a demand by the Judge Advocate that the witnesses when sworn should take the oath of allegiance. It happened very naturally that most of them were rebels."

Today, Mr. GREELEY is a candidate for Democratic votes and a bitter opponent of the Republican Party. He has lately undertaken to please his new political associates by praising Gen. BUELL. That officer no longer, in Mr. GREELEY's estimation, deserves to be shot as a deserter. His sole offense was that "he was a distinguished strategist, but he was over cautious." He is no longer called a Copperhead, but his peculiar views as to the desirability of crushing the rebellion are delicately described by saying that "he was a conservative in politics, and very free in his criticisms upon the policy of the Government. He was not on good terms with either GRANT or SHERMAN." Of the Court of Inquiry Mr. GREELEY now remarks: "That it disposed entirely of the imputations on the General's patriotism is evident from the fact that on two occasions subsequently he was offered a command." With a view of injuring Gen. GRANT, the former villifier of BUELL now demands to know "whose reputation was assailed by the disclosures of that Court? Whose capacity and courage were attacked by Gen. BUELL's witnesses?" In 1864, Mr. GREELEY sneered at the evidence of BUELL's witnesses, and asserted that most of them were rebels. Now, he wishes to make the country believe, on the authority of these same witnesses, that GRANT and SHERMAN were cowardly and incapable.

What Mr. GREELEY says of any man is chiefly dictated by the passion of the moment, not by any sense of justice. It is, however, curious to note how the mere fact of his candidacy for the Cincinnati nomination has changed his opinion of BUELL and BUELL's witnesses. The man who, in 1864, was a Copperhead, who deserved to be shot, and escaped conviction only by the evidence of rebel witnesses, is today an accomplished, though rather cautious officer, whose patriotism was fully vindicated by witnesses who deserved implicit confidence.

Spain and the Internationals.

Who shall decide when doctors disagree? In a debate on the International Society, held in the British House of Commons on April 12, Dr. BREWER assured his hearers that the opinions put forward by the International Society are mere "playthings," that the persons who hold and express them only desire such publicity as can be given them by a notice in the House of Commons; and that the simple way to put down the Society is by "progressing in national education." It naturally occurs to the mind that, if the organization is in itself so contemptible, there can be no particular reason for putting it down at all; and that if progress in national education is to bring, as a chief fruit, such trifling consequences, matters might as well be at a standstill. But it is aptly pointed out that the opinions of the International did not turn out to be "playthings" when they took shape and expression under the Paris Commune; and it is these proceedings, rather than such mild persuasions as those of Dr. BREWER, that the Spanish Government has had in view when it made its late overtures concerning the International to the English Government.

Those overtures we described some time ago in these columns. They included a proposition for a Convention of the European Powers, which should take concerted action against the body. Dr. BREWER finds so trivial and harmless; and an enlargement of the scope of Extradition Treaties, so that conspiring members of the Society, fleeing from one country into another, might be delivered up, as in most cases criminals are given up now. As we predicted, when this project was first talked of, the British Government has refused to have any hand in it. Señor DE ELAS made out a very plausible case, but the reply of Lord GRANVILLE is quite unanswerable. He points out that, so far as England goes, the International Society confines its operations chiefly to advice in questions of strikes, and has but very little money at its disposal for their support. The Society may be formidable enough on the Continent, where it has other repressive influences to combat, but elsewhere, like unimprisoned steam, it passes readily into vapor without threatening explosion. The Reddest Republicans of the French Revolution did no harm when they came to the United States; there was nothing here for them to fight against.

The measures that Spain proposes against the International Society are the measures of all others to make that body, in all places, the formidable organization the Spanish statesman professes to believe it. Repression in such cases infallibly begets resistance. The less Government is felt or seen in this, as in most matters, the better; and the surest way to win against a force like the International is to let it fight the air. If it must be directly dealt with, the true plan is to aim at causes and not effects; to get at the root of discontent and cure that, and not go hacking and carving at the branches of the tree. It is as true as any axiom in exact science that the International must gain its chief strength from the efforts of its foes. At present, and apart from the Commune, it is "nebulous," diffused, and not concentrated for harm. Condense its elements, drive them in together, inspire the mass with the spirit of offensive solidarity, and the mischief possible to it may become incalculable. We are told that the coming planet cannot harm us even if it does "collide" with the earth next August; but, were its gaseous and indefinitely expanded particles hammered together into a solid mass, and were the collision then to come, we may be sure that neither the Spanish Government nor the International Society would give the other any more uneasiness.

The Tribune on the Vanderbilt Job.

In the Tribune of Saturday last we find the following observations:

"Col. HAWKINS stigmatizes the action of the Assembly in indorsing the Vanderbilt sink-the-wreck project respecting Fourth-avenue as grossly corrupt. We presume this imputation well founded. That our tax-payers generally should be made to pay several millions of dollars to defray the cost of that operation, by a vote of the Assembly which is not purchased, we cannot realize. * * * * * * * If, therefore, Col. HAWKINS had been content with denouncing such a vote as flagrantly profligate, and holding up those who cast it to general scorn and rebuke, we should gladly have proffered our columns as a medium for diffusing such denunciation."

In the Tribune of Monday last we find the following in the same editorial type:

"Our City needs the quickest and cheapest possible means of communication with her suburbs; she needs especially quick transit to the main-land of our State. Commodore VANDERBILT proposes to perfect one line of Under-ground Railroad via Fourth-avenue, and we wish him all success."

From these extracts it appears that on Saturday the Tribune held a project to be "grossly corrupt" to which, on Monday it wished "all success." There is nothing in this sudden and violent change of front inconsistent with the habits of the Tribune; but we should like to know by what principle of logic or of morals it reconciles its denunciation of a corrupt legislature with a line of action precisely similar to that which it condemns. The Assembly has repeatedly been "converted" this session, just as the Tribune now has been; that is to say, between two days. That paper may plead that the change of heart had been wrought by the same means; but if it would retain any reputation whatever, either for integrity or definiteness of purpose, it should avoid the appearance of evil, and take care not to contradict point blank in the issue of one day the opinions and policy it has avowed the day before.

MINOR TOPICS.

In an editorial in yesterday's TIMES, under the heading of "The Vanderbilt Job," the name of Mr. WHITBECK, Assemblyman from the Twenty-first City District, was inadvertently introduced. It is only justice to that gentleman to say that he has steadfastly opposed the Vanderbilt under-ground scheme, and that his agreement to the compromise effected in regard to the Fourth-avenue track was dictated by good policy and sound sense. On all the Vanderbilt jobs, Mr. WHITBECK's record is perfectly straight.

Now that Mrs. HYDE has been practically acquitted upon the preposterous plea of insanity, it only remains that FOSTER, the car-hook murderer, should be acquitted on the plea of drunkenness. The final tribunal has not yet decided upon the case of the latter murderer, but a strong attempt is now being made by a part of the Press to excite sympathy for him on the ground that he was drunk when he struck his victim, and had no well-defined intention of killing him. Every sensible person knows that this villain, who first insulted a lady and then brutally killed the gentleman who was escorting her, committed murder, if murder can be committed. To acquit him because he was drunk is to license any man to kill who first drinks himself into a proper condition of recklessness. Our intelligent juries have already rendered it safe for any woman to commit murder, and if FOSTER escapes no drunken brute can hereafter be punished.

For several weeks past the screeheads in Indiana have been busily circulating in their State a call for participation in the Cincinnati Convention. This call has at last been published, and the list of signers furnishes conclusive proof that the "Liberal Republican" movement in Indiana is a dead failure. Among the signers of the call are but three men of some prominence—THOMAS N. STILWELL, a friend of ANDREW JOHNSON in the Congress of 1865-66, whom the Tribune branded repeatedly as a traitor to the Republican Party on account of his Johnsonism, whose appointment as Minister to Venezuela was not confirmed by the Senate for the same reason, and who has ever since acted with the Democratic Party;—DAVID S. BURSON, an unsuccessful applicant for various Federal offices;—and, singular enough, JOHN D. DEFREES, who, last week, was elected a member of the screehead delegation from the District of Columbia, and whose name has been appended to the Indiana call in order to make it look a little more respectable.

On Saturday night, about 10½ o'clock, a gentleman was assaulted by a gang of thieves on board one of the Thirty-fourth-street ferry-boats, while it was lying in the slip. Two of the scoundrels attacked him, and though he was severely bruised, he succeeded in making a stout fight, until the attention of the other passengers in the cabin being attracted, the thieves became frightened and ran off. Two or three other roughs, evidently belonging to the same gang, remained on the boat, and threatened to make another attack upon the gentleman when they reached the Long Island shore. There being, however, a policeman in the Hunter's Point ferry-house, the villains reconsidered their purpose, and hastily went up the main street. While the fight was in progress on the New-York side, not a policeman appeared, and no person attached to the ferry-boat was in sight. Will Mr. KELSO station an officer at this ferry, or does he intend to leave those who are forced to patronize it to the tender mercies of robbers and cut-throats?

In another column will be found two very pointed and caustic replies to Gen. BARNUM's invitation to the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic to help him to earn the pay of his Tammany employers. The Grand Army, from its very origin, has declared itself to be a non-political body. At his installation as Department Commander, Gen. BARNUM expressly and solemnly disclaimed all intention of making the Grand Army a political machine. BARNUM's pretension to a title—that of Commander-in-Chief—which he does not hold, is known to be of a piece with his professions of fidelity to the rights of the enfranchised which he has never shown.

AMUSEMENTS.

Academy of Music.

FAREWELL OF MISS NILSSON.

The sad word that "has been and must be" was spoken last night at the Academy to one of the best and fairest and perhaps the best-loved, of the song-birds who have ever flown to us across the Atlantic. Miss NILSSON carolled her farewell song before an assemblage of vast number and distinction, and, as the echoes died away in the spacious auditorium, there was a general sigh of regret, as from those who are about to lose a valued acquaintance. The conventions that establish a distinction between the artist and the individual are wise and salutary; the relation of the public is limited, in strictness to the former, yet there are instances when it is for the good of art that the admiration which is felt for private no less than for public excellence should be freely expressed. Such was the case with this memorable Farewell. Miss NILSSON said good-bye less to the public than to a wide circle of affectionate acquaintances, and the regret felt in parting from the great singer, was merged in the sorrow of separating from the dear friend.

The house was splendid last night, and the enthusiasm of a thoroughly honest kind. That Miss NILSSON is weary with her arduous and protracted exertions, and that she needs rest, we know. There was, however, little trace of this in her voice or acting. From the "Ah, fors 'e lui" of Violetta, at the beginning, to the final mournful, expiring cadence of Ophelia, at the close, all the familiar sweetness and power and execution were there, and enraptured us as of old. The work laid out for the evening was pretty exacting. Four acts from four operas sound as if they were no more than four acts of one opera, but the task of singing them may be very much more. The acts chosen in these mixed bills are commonly the hardest or most exhausting ones; and the total changes of dress demanded add to the physical strain. However, soprano and tenor alike were let off in one of the four works last night—Miss NILSSON escaping from the "Trovatore" act, and Signor BRIGNOLI from the "Hamlet." The lady went through the first act of the "Traviata," the second act of "Lucia," and the fourth act of "Hamlet." Criticism on these familiar efforts is not now called for. They include what has, we believe, been most generally and most justly admired here among Miss NILSSON's lyric achievements, and the appreciation of them last night was warmer than ever. The heartiest of applause and the loveliest of flowers greeted the lady at every turn, and the plainly unfeigned emotion shown by her met sympathetic response on every side. Signor BRIGNOLI, although by no means in good voice, was inspired by the magnetism of the occasion even to unusual efforts, and sang the numbers falling to him with fire and delicacy. Signor BARBE was heard to advantage in Lucia, and Miss CARY revived the memory of her previous success in Amneris. Mr. MAREZEK, whose popularity with New-Yorkers is totally unaffected by time or anything else, came in for a warm share of cordial recognition and led the band with customary taste and energy. The house, as regards number, was literally enormous, and the final seal of approval was appropriately set to a series of operas which have derived memorable lustre from the genius of Miss NILSSON and the courage and good faith of the Messrs. STRAKOSCH, the managers.

Musical.

TO-NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE.

The farewell performance, in which Mme. PATTI-ROSA, Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS, Herr WACHTEL and Mr. SANTLEY are to take part, is to occur at the Academy of Music this evening. Last night's recital of "Il Trovatore," at the Brooklyn Academy, attracted, we learn, an audience representing $9,100.

MME. MARZOCCHI'S CONCERT.

The very interesting concert given for the benefit of Mme. MARZOCCHI, occurs at Steinway Hall this evening, and not on Wednesday, as was erroneously announced in these columns. Miss Adelaide Phillips, Mme. Elder, Miss Cornelia Steeton, Signors Brignoli and Ferranti, Messrs. Mills and Sloper, and G. W. Morgan and Miss Adelaide Manzocchi are concerned in the performance.

Dramatic.

BOOTH'S THEATRE.

The "Iron Chest" and "Katherine and Petruchio," were given at this establishment last evening, Mr. EDWIN BOOTH and Miss PATTIMAN appearing in both pieces. The character of Sir Edward Mortimer is evidently more adapted to Mr. BOOTH's style of acting than that of the vivacious and boisterous Petruchio, yet Mr. BOOTH continues to invest the latter rôle with a certain degree of interest, and he so seldom fills it that the mere announcement of its assumption is sufficient to attract a large audience, as was the case last evening. Miss PATTIMAN was a charming Katherine, and she shared with Mr. BOOTH the honors of the evening. The two pieces will be repeated this evening, and on Wednesday "Richard the III." will be produced with unusual splendor, all the dresses, scenery and appointments being quite new.

WOOD'S MUSEUM.

The burlesque of "Ixion" was repeated at this house last evening. "Ixion" has often been acted at Wood's, and with invariably successful results, both in respect of its powers of attraction and its impressiveness. The present distribution of parts brings into requisition the services of Misses PAULINE MARKHAM and BELLE HOWITT and of Messrs. ROLLIN HOWARD and SHERIDON. The amusing results of the co-operation of these well-known performers may be enjoyed nightly until further notice.

Soirée at Dr. Naphegyi's.

One of the most brilliant gatherings of the American Geographical Association was held last night at the mansion of Dr. GABOR NAPHEGYI, on Fifty-third-street. Not only did the members turn out in full force, but they brought many friends, distinguished citizens of New-York, who were anxious to see the far-famed conservatory of the Doctor and his pictures. There were also present many distinguished ladies. All the guests admired the specimens of the bread-fruit tree, the huge, hideous cacti and the hundreds of strange orchidaceous plants which were interspersed with the double petunias, the fuschias and camelias. After everyone had gazed upon these and upon the old masters, Chief Justice CHAS. P. DALY called the members to order, and announced that Dr. NAPHEGYI had presented to the Society a set of old and valuable books, and a map which was unique in cartography. It was made by the Aztec chief of Montezuma, and presented by that unfortunate monarch to the Spanish conqueror, CORTEZ. The proofs of its origin were written in old Castilian on the map itself, by no less a man than the famous historian, CLAVIGERO. It was found in the convent of the Inquisition, in Mexico, too, by a General serving under MAXIMILIAN, who presented it to Dr. NAPHEGYI. The books were very valuable. One of them was a Venetian dictionary, printed in 1505. After the Doctor had been duly thanked, the guests sat down to a good supper, which was suitably enjoyed.

Meeting of the Committee of Seventy.

At the meeting of the Committee of Seventy, last evening, the Chairman, Hon. WM. F. HAVEMEYER, presented the resignation as Vice-President of JAMES M. BROWN, Esq., and prefaced it by saying: "His (Mr. BROWN's) faithful discharge of duty, his zeal in the cause in which we are engaged, his genial disposition and gentlemanly courtesy in our official and personal intercourse, have endeared him so fully to our respect and confidence, that I am sure you will share my regret that any necessity should have arisen to create a vacancy in the office (Vice-President) which he has so long and so honorably filled."

The resignation of Mr. BROWN was laid on the table, and Hon. JOHN WEAVER was chosen to fill the office of Vice-President during Mr. BROWN's absence in Europe.

Hon. EDWARD SALOMON made an elaborate report for the Committee on Legislation, of which he is Chairman, of affairs in Albany, but there was little new of public interest in the report.

The Committee of Seventy will meet in special session on Thursday evening.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

What is Thought of Horace Greeley's Apostacy in Particular, and the Republican Movement in General.

From the New-Haven Journal.

It is a little curious that Mr. GREELEY, who is so old crossed for contributing the thousand and one stories put upon him about his knowledge of agriculture, the efficacy of TWEED'S charter, and the like, has not had a word to say about the very unpleasant things he said of Hon. LYMAN TRUMBULL when that gentleman failed to obey the Tribune's orders and vote to convict President JOHNSON. If Mr. GREELEY maintains this opinion he then expressed that Mr. TRUMBULL was a corrupt and perjured man, it is but another illustration of the trite maxim that "politics make strange bedfellows."

From the Norwich (N. Y.) Telegraph.

MR. GREELEY was appointed the successor of the late HENRY J. RAYMOND on the Republican Committee because no one pretended that he could prove unfaithful to the Republican organization. But what do we see? Before the term of Mr. GREELEY has expired he is found to be engineering a movement to defeat the party by the most unnatural coalition of parties, or fragments of parties, ever before known in this country. After all, the traitor of TRIP, DAVIS by Mr. GREELEY was a precursor of a political variety between these men which few at the time dreamed of. But the spectacle is one which true Republicans will reveal as and turn from in disgust.

From the Little Rock (Ark.) Republican.

HORACE GREELEY was a member of the National Republican Committee. He alone, of all its members, refused to sign the call for the Philadelphia Convention, but made a boast of signing that of the Cincinnati Convention. HORACE, in the last few days, has come out and stated positively that his paper, the New-York Tribune, is no longer a party paper, and no longer claims to be a Republican organ. He has gone out from the Republican camp, and carried all his baggage along. "Cincinnati welcomes all," says Mr. GREELEY; and as Mr. HARLSON remarked, she does so with the formula, "All old scrubbed, come in; anything to beat GRANT." Mr. GREELEY, in his address to the Cincinnati Convention that honesty which, in your opinion, was so much lacking in the Republican Party; you may find there congenial society, and the material for a huge budget of reforms, but will you find anybody to beat GRANT? Quoth the raven, nevermore. Farewell, old scrubbed! farewell!

From the Binghamton Republican.

Editor of the Republican:

Accidentally hearing of the anxiety of the public to know my views, intentions, and movements, a due regard for the privileges of self-importance induces me to give my reasons for not attending the Cincinnati Convention.

First—While in favor of the utmost liberty of thought and discussion, I remember that if the majority of the supporters of the Cincinnati Convention could have had their way, the right of free speech would have been annihilated.

Second—Having been in the army, I remember that organization and discipline therein are essential to the triumph of great principles, and I heartily detest deserters.

Third—The Cincinnati Convention will be attended mainly by deserters, who, for promises of reward, have consented to deploy in Republican uniforms in front of the Democratic army, masking its skulking movements, commanding its batteries of defamation and abuse, and aiding its plan of campaign.

If Gen. GRANT is nominated by the Philadelphia Convention, he will be elected simply because the people generally believe him one of the honest and most thoroughly honest Presidents the nation ever had.

JOHN F. SMITH.

From the Miners' (Penn.) Journal.

Since the New-York Tribune has been gyrating in the most fantastic manner, it seems to put its facts mixed up awfully. The other day it set down Berks and Schuylkill as strong Republican counties, which blunder, however, it subsequently corrected; and now it speaks of the Chief-Justice of Pennsylvania as one Mr. CLIFFORD. These blunders probably would not be so noticeable if it were not for the high standard the Tribune sets up for itself journalistically. The philosopher should keep a better supervision over the columns of the Tribune.!

From the Dayton (Ohio) Journal.

We read the New-York Tribune very attentively, and every day when the mail don't fail, and we are bound to say that it has not reached the Whitelaw Reid standard of independent journalism by a long shot. We won't say that it lies, but its perversions of fact and misrepresentations of adversaries come so near to lying that, if we were sworn as a candid witness, we couldn't go back on the impression that we received from reading the Tribune, that its object is not to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; but that its purpose is to "beat GRANT." We never saw the consequences. Ween we had a much more ardent admiration for Dr. GREELEY than we have now, we heard an eminent American statesman who knew him well say: "You will live to find out that GREELEY is not what he pretends. He is able, but he is as false as the d—l."

From the Jamaica Standard (Democratic.)

We have heard a great deal for the last five years about the decay and death of the Democratic Party. Every whipper-snapper of a Republican paper in the country has announced it time after time, but it has remained one of the livelliest corpses the world ever saw. We think, now, however, that its death-knell must soon be rung; HORACE GREELEY is about to inflict himself upon it. A party that can nominate GRANT must be clad in iron sevenfold—and even then he would sink it if he got on board. And yet he gives symptoms of coming over. He has deserted the Grant folks, who are the Republican Party, pure and simple; has deserted his pet hobby—a protective tariff—and backed down to a tariff for revenue, and now, the last and unkindest cut of all, is dallying with the Cincinnati Convention. The Cincinnati Convention is not a Democratic concern, to be sure, but it is a sort of purgatory through which the uneasy spirits of Republicans hope to pass in order to cleanse themselves from the sins of the flesh, Democracy. The Cincinnati waters, which are depended upon to wash them clean, will be muddy enough after the operation. Think of SCHURZ, TRUMBULL, SUMNER and the rest, going through it! And about GREELEY, with that hat and old white coat! It would take a Spring freshet of the Ohio River to do for him. We can hardly tell of them but GREELEY. His coming reminds us of the donkey who got his foot in the stirrup. Said Pat, who was riding him, "Now look here, be jabers! If you're after getting on I'll be after getting off."

From the Poughkeepsie Daily Eagle.

Only a few months ago the New-York Tribune, though it did not advocate the renomination of Gen. GRANT, was strong in its defense of his personal qualifications and his policy, as several extracts which we have published conclusively show. Today it has joined his defamers, and helps to swell the cry against him, and in favor of the using of calls "reform." Gen. GRANT was called upon then to be what he is now; his personal character was just the same then as it had been before the public so long that there could be nothing concealed; there has been no change in his policy; everything that is complained of now existed then, and not only existed but was subject of discussion. The Tribune was then his defender, and is now his assailant. Is it alone his there been any change. Why? It cries for no reason. None of its colleagues do. They talk vaguely about reform, it is true, but there is no reform proposed that was not talked of then; they bring up what they call the one-term principle, but they know that GRANT's renomination would be opposed to the last just as well then as they do now. There is no reason whatever for a change of front, except such as may be connected with either personal pique or personal ambition, and the course of Mr. GREELEY and the Tribune is itself the strongest proof that its utterances are worthy of no more weight than a revolutionary pronunciamento. Denouncing the Mexican bandits who violently denounce the Government, and wage war against it, giving no reason and thinking of none, save that they are out of power and want to get in.

From the Independent.

The New-York Tribune professes to be an earnest advocate for reform in the civil service; and yet its anti-Grantism is so intense, so utterly wanting in candor, that it wantonly misjudges every effort of the President to promote the very end which it claims to seek. Facts abundantly show that reform in the civil service has no truer friend than Gen. GRANT. While the Tribune talks he acts. Of late the recent proclamation of additional rules to govern the end, the President said last week, that "the President perseveres in the appearance of keeping up civil service reform," yet that he "does not mean what he says; but keeps the word of promise now to break it when the time comes." These words appeared in the Tribune of the 17th inst., as part of an editorial note. Their bitter, personal injustice violates every rule of fair and honest criticism. They show a determination to discredit Gen. GRANT, no matter what he does. If the Tribune expects to make anti-Grantism a success by such methods of vituperation and attack, then it has a wonderfully misjudged the temper of the American people.

From the Scholarie Union.

For thirty years the portrait of HORACE GREELEY has adorned the sanctum of the Union office. When he advocated secession in 1860 the picture was turned with the face to the wall. As soon as HOWLICK saw the error of his ways the picture was reversed and once more did the smiling countenance of GREELEY illumed our office. In 1864, when he threatened to bolt the nomination of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, the picture was again reversed. Once more he repented and the order was reversed. When he named JEFF. DAVIS bail bond we turned him again to the wall for three months. Again we have put the old fellow back of Tammany Hall. We have tried him long enough. He is the greatest political curiosity, we think, of the nineteenth century. He is over to the camp of the Democracy, we don't propose to take the responsibility of placing his portrait to the right—about a dozen times in failure as we have in the past. This time we take the portrait down.

From the New-Bedford (Mass.) Mercury.

In the Presidential campaign, which has commenced some what earlier than usual, the keen interest, manifested by many who do not ordinarily take an active part in politics, indicates that the time is something more than the mere selection of a candidate. The Philadelphia Convention, it has been said, is a movement to renominate Gen. GRANT, on the part of the office holders. Mr. WILSON, in his recent speech in New-York, remarked that he would not say as much, but would hint that it was possible, barely possible, the Cincinnati Convention was a rebuke of the office seekers. But he thought, and the mass of the people think with him, that the contest is a more serious one, than a scramble for office. It is a renewal of the conflict carried on at the point of the sword during the rebellion. Gen. GRANT represents today the great Republican army, as he then did the soldiers of the Union. There not doubting, honest opponents to him. But the opposition is mainly on the part of those who hope to defeat radical Republicanism. In such a contest Mr. GRANT has chosen to be on the side of Gen. GRANT. His caricatures illustrate the absurdity and unfairness of the attacks made upon the Administration; and at the same time ridicule the existence of the enemies of the Republican Party, and the fatal consequences of what is miscalled Liberal Republicanism. They present the issues of the election so that he who runs may read. And they are doing the work of scores of brilliant stump-speakers.

From the Worcester Spy.

The self-styled "Liberal" or "Reform Republicans" attack the present Administration for what they pronounce its shortcomings in the matters of amnesty and civil service reform. Revenue reform was one of the planks in the platform first constructed for them in Missouri, but, as it seemed impossible to decoy Mr. GRAHAM from the Treasury, and as his presence and aid were necessary, that plank has been taken out or covered up, somewhat to the dissatisfaction of the originators of the movement. Its real purpose, however, is to defeat GRANT, and everything must be subservient to that. Amnesty and civil service reform are good party cries, and, in supplying them, they find it convenient to serve their purpose very well, if they could at the same time persuade the people that the present Administration was hostile to both or either of these measures. Both have been before Congress this Winter, and both have been defeated or obstructed by Congress, but not, by the influence or with the approval of the Administration. Amnesty failed in the Senate. It is said, with apparent truth, because Mr. SUMNER persisted in coupling with it his Civil Rights measure. Mr. SUMNER may have been right or wrong in this, we think he was right; but no one has ventured to say he was prompted by Gen. GRANT. Civil service reform has been one of Gen. GRANT's favorite measures; he has urged it upon Congress in more than one message, and has gone as far as the legislation of Congress would permit in organizing a system which some of the most earnest friends of reform in this direction have aided him in framing. Congress, we probably, has given little encouragement, and refuses him the appropriation necessary to give the proposed improvement a fair trial. This may be a good reason for making extensive changes in Congress, but it cannot fairly be made an argument for a change of Presidents.

The other charges against the Administration are constantly reiterated are equally unfair and unfounded. No precedent Administration has ever been subjected to an ordeal so searching as that which the several Executive Departments have recently passed through. If there is no more substantial cause than we represent for the Cincinnati movement, why should it have any supporters? It has not so many as its friends claim and believe, and those it has are influenced by several reasons. Some of them are restless, ambitious schemers, disappointed office-seekers, "soreheads," in fact, an expressive if not elegant term. Others are more respectable; they think the President is not so discreet in his manner nor as select in his associations as he should be and, putting too much stress upon these superficial traits, they think Gen. GRANT should give way to a candidate who excels him in the matter of deportment.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

The approaching Convention at Cincinnati formally opens the Presidential campaign, and the American people are to decide if they wish a change of Administration. Three choices are before them: First, the restoration of the Democracy; second, the re-election of President GRANT; third, the selection of such midway candidates as may be presented by the Cincinnati Convention. As to the first, the mind of the nation has been made up for years. That great party was faithless to its ancient faith; it ceased to be a party of liberty; it ceased to be a political unison. The same President and Vice-President will be Republicans who have abandoned their regular organization, and who owe their success to Democratic votes. If LYMAN TRUMBULL, or DAVID DAVIS, or CHAS. FRANCIS ADAMS shall be chosen President next Fall, can either of them legitimately claim a wing of the coalition party which contributed to their party success? Will all the favors be showered upon that small minority which engineered the Cincinnati movement, and will nothing be accorded to the Democracy for the aid, support, and comfort rendered by them? Not so. Just as CHARLES BLAIR, and DOUGLASS became exiled Democrats after breaking with the Republican organization, so TRUMBULL, DAVIS, or ADAMS will become exponents of Democratic policy, if elected, as they must be if, at all, by Democratic votes.

There are other features to be considered in connection with this Cincinnati demonstration. It was a Democratic agency sought to ratify the nomination made by that Convention, and to do their best to elect two belting Republicans to the Presidency and the Vice-Presidency, they will claim from the "Liberals" the same kind of support for their own local candidates. If Democrats vote for the "Liberal" President, it will be a Democrat "must" vote for Democratic candidates for Congress, and for State offices. With a Republican Senate and a Democratic House of Representatives, the "Liberal" incumbent of the Presidential chair, however well-disposed, would be powerless to carry out any of the "reforms" which the Republican organization is supposed to demand. If the future movements of the coalition were to be determined by Liberal Republicans, there might be some excuse for Republicans joining in with it. But the Republican minority of the new party is so certain to be swallowed up by the Democratic majority that we warn all Republicans who have not participated to join the Democratic Party outright, to beware committing themselves to the Cincinnati movement.

MAY-DAY.

The Memories of Maying in New-York.—May-Day in the Olden Times—Traditions.

There was a time when the good folks of our blood and lineage looked forward to May-day with rapture. Very different, indeed, are the feelings with which we, their descendants of spring, regard its advent. Ever since the proprietors of houses and their agents made it a habit to lease houses from one first of May until the succeeding first of May, the daylines been the occasion of grief, of woe, of misery unspeakable. What possesses the female mind on the subject has never been accurately discovered. Mental analysis of shifty have been few among us, and the man has not yet made his appearance who has dared to probe a woman's mind with respect to moving after a year's occupancy of any house. The causes which bring about this remarkable dislike to stay over a year in any house, are not to be found on the surface of things by any means. The custom, or rather the disease, is not confined to any one class. It is universal. On Fifth-avenue, as the "fatal day" approaches, wagons will be seen standing in front of superb brown-stone front houses, furniture will be observed piled upon the sidewalk, and females with anxious faces will be remarked superintending the placing of the latter upon the former with due care. Generally on these occasions the youthful scions of the family stay away from school to assist, all hain being sternly refused on his part by paterfamilias, who, having vainly objected to moving, has regarded his spouse for the past week with the glare of a kindtiger in his eyes when they meet at meals, and has answered all her remarks with inarticulate snorts of rage and defiance. He, therefore, goes down as usual to his office and leaves that foolish woman, his wife, to shift as she best can without him. The children, it must be confessed, are more zealous than helpful, and after Sammy has assisted in breaking a cheval glass and Maude has fallen down upon a band-box containing her mamma's latest Spring bonnet, they are tearfully entreated to desist by their mother, and bribed into enforced idleness much against their wills. The servants, and the hired carriers are not so zealous, but their indifference is as costly in the long run, and when all the things are landed in the new house the lady discovers with horror that all sorts of accidents have occurred, which will make, what Mr. Mantalini called, a "damnition total" of an alarming amount. To say nothing of two mirrors being beautifully starred, and the piano having three inches of molding torn away, two of the castors from papa's easy chair have fallen off and been lost, and the same thing has happened with the sofa, which sags in the most horrid way. The carpets are not yet down in the new house, and the whole family have to browse as best they can in the parlors, with all their family goods grouped picturesquely around them. When paterfamilias returns, about 6½ o'clock, he finds there is something wrong with the faucet in his dressing-room, and water has to be brought in a pitcher. He rings for it three times, but the servants, who are attempting to reduce order from chaos in the lower regions, think themselves privileged, under the circumstances, in neglecting to answer master's bell—so he has to descend into the basement for it himself, which he does with a free use of profane language and sundry side hits at his wife. Then a towel is sought for in vain for some minutes, and at length Maude remembers that all the towels and napkins were packed in the little hamper that came with the game in the Winter from Fort Edward. The hamper is found, and the towels, but some one was sufficiently ill-advised as to put a bottle of Bass's Philocome with other toilet articles in with the linen, and the stopper having come out through the jolting, all the towels and half the napkins are saturated with deliciously perfumed oil. Master Sammy is in ecstacies, and cries "Jehosaphat, don't it smell good!" at which his father is so enraged that he compliments him with a box on the ear that assists him to comprehend the family sorrow. Materfamilias, not daring to face her husband's wrath, takes the edge of his anger by scolding frightfully over the occurrence herself, and declaring that she will certainly discharge the stupid girl who did that. As it turns out that the culprit is Miss Maude, that young lady is sent up by her mamma to bed, but being her father's favorite, he brings her down to the parlor in a little while, and then is upbraided by his wife for spoiling the children and upsetting her discipline. This is her diplomatic way of preventing his reproaches. There is a sorry display over the dinner-table, which is spread in a gypsy sort of fashion that has its charms, but then there is hardly anything to eat, except ham and the stale biscuits left from the morning meal, which have been hurriedly put on one side in case of emergency. This and cold cocoanut-pie is not specially nutritious, and who can blame the aggrieved master of the family when he informs his wife that he can get a better meal down town for twenty-five cents, and that with the amount which he allows her for housekeeping he does expect to get something that he can eat. "Well, my dear," says the wife in a depressing tone, "we're moving, you know."

"Yes, Madam, I do know, but why move, why move, Madam, that's what I want to know?"

And this is exactly what his wife does not tell him. He goes off to his club and dines there in a satisfactory style, though the bill is hardly as satisfactory. He meets there some old friends, to whom he recounts his grievances, and he learns from them that their wives are moving too. Not only they, but the waiters who bring them their cigars, and the steward who makes out their bills, and the very attendant on the billiard-room, are suffering from the same trouble. If these unhappy ones were to seize upon the passers by and question them, they would discover that every third married man is a victim to his wife's mania for moving. It is an universal trouble. What we have seen on Fifth-avenue repeats itself in Madison-street and East Broadway, in Varick-street and Hudson. Even down in Baxter-street there are people who cart their squalor from one fan to another in obedience to the general law. Yet it does seem strange that women, whose domain and empire is the home, should, of themselves, periodically break up that home and scatter to the winds of heaven all the pleasant associations that have clustered around it during a twelvemonth. There must always be places about a house sacred to some member of the family; spots inexpressibly dear by reason of some passages that the world will never know of, but that the actors will not soon forget. Even for less sentimental causes there are plentiful reasons why a family loses in the home nature of its home by any change. It is a comfort to know how many steps one has to go up and down so as to be able to walk boldly in the darkness without putting one's foot down carefully, like a cat shod with walnuts. It is a blessed to know where the nails in the closets are, in what crevices the boot-jack slides, and where the thousand and one adjuncts of civilization are stowed, without having to submit the entire household to a cross-examination. And to many houses there are pleasant little yards, which, if cultivated would be a source of endless pleasure. But who will take slips in the Autumn if he may not plant them in the Spring, or who will delve and prune and tend that others may enjoy next year the benefit of his knowledge and care. So the garden is neglected and becomes a wilderness of scraggling, drowsy grass, bearing a crop of miscellaneous objects in the rag and bottle line, and is taken possession of by stray cats, who make it the abiding place of alternate caterwauling and sanoodling, to the anguish of light sleepers.

May was not, with our ancestors, a season of hearth desolation. On the contrary, it was a festival of the village fun and frolic. But old customs are like old wine—they will not bear transplanting. On their native soil they flourish with amazing vitality and seem incurable to the strides of time and to the changed conditions of the world. Our forefathers kept May-day nominally as the festival of St. Philip and St. James, in hobbyhorse to the policy of the Catholic Church, which tacked a Saint's festival on to every Druidic custom which was too powerful to be abolished. And in England May-day is still kept in a humble sort of fashion, though truly the memories of bold Robin Hood and Maid Marian are quite gone, and the hobbyhorse is sleek forgotten. So also the pleasant merriment about the May-pole, which Americans know only from the travesties of the stage, has passed away. Here and there rustics with a taste for archæology attempt to perpetuate the May-pole, but in vain. The country humblings who have been tempted by a promise of abundant sweet and ale to force it around the mystic tree with the young women of the village, have forgotten more than the mere trick of the pastime, which could easily be relearned. They have forgotten the happiness of heart, which earned for their country the title of Merrie England, and when they attempt merriment do it with such an ill-grace that a funeral would be more lively. Whenever the experiment of revival has been tried, the guests have invariably refused to face the May-pole until enlivened with copious draughts of beer, and then, instead of tripping lightly, they pulled and hauled each other about until some fell down and had their limbs injured, and others got mad and instead of fighting. At present the only genuine performance is the motley masquerading of the sweeps. This useful confraternity dress themselves up for the occasion in parti-colored raiment redicaned with ribbons, and caper round a man completely hidden with leafy branches, who is called Jack in the Green. The best-looking female of the party, which is not saying very much for the general comeliness of the lady masters, goes round the different houses of the place, presenting a tambourine in which money is generally placed by the householders. The whole affair is an inoffensive one, and ordinarily London members of Parliament have undertaken to suppress it by various bills, but the culprits manage to evade the law, and make their appearance every year. This is a pitiful ending for the old customs, which, however, are quite unsuited to modern times, and are repugnant to modern ideas. In the early days of England it was well the customs, as, in a whole at night, precedes the May morning, to awaken the inhabitants with loud blowing of horns. Then all the young people of both sexes marched out to the woods, singing choruses. There they remained, passing the time in various games, until sunrise, when they all bathed their faces in dew, and then returned home laden with the flowers of the meadows, and with boughs of the sweet hawthorn. During the morning there was service at the church in honor of St. Philip and St. James, and in the afternoon there was the spectacle of the Morrice dancers, and the pageantry of Robin Hood and his men. A Queen of May, and a Lord of May, were then chosen, sometimes by acclamation, sometimes by lot, and the dancing and sports commenced under their orders.

Among the Gaelic and Erse tribes of the Highlands of Scotland and Ireland the same observances were usual during the day, but the midnight ceremonial was very different, and betrayed very plainly its horrible origin. It was called Beltane, and exists to this day in a modified form. At midnight the whole village turned out and built a table or altar of turf, with a deep ditch around it. On the table fire were lighted and oatcakes made of milk and meal, and when the cake was kneaded by one of the party with great secrecy, and was cooked on the sacred. It was divided into as many portions as there were people present, and one part was blackened with charcoal. The whole was then placed in a hat, and every one had to draw a piece, the one securing the blackened part being obliged to leap some times over the fire, or to pass through it three times. Even now the farmers in the South of Ireland light wisps of straw and drive the cows through the flame. The fact is that the word Beltane means Baal's tyne or Baal's time, and was an idolatrous worship of Baal, the Sun God, for whose honor the Jews of old passed their children through the fire. Indeed the whole May celebration, including the pole, was a remnant of Phallic worship, and has very happily passed away. An attempt was made to revive it in olden times at Merry Mount, in Massachusetts, by some rodless cavaliers, but the stout Governor, ENDICOTT, came down with a battalion of Puritans, upset the assembly and hewed the May-pole into a thousand pieces, declaring it to be a filthy idol, as indeed it was.

"C. C. AND I. C."

Continued Rise in the Stock and its Cause—Atlantic and Great Western.

The speculation in the stock of the Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central Railroad continued to be a feature of the market, yesterday, Erie and Pacific Mail, which had accompanied it on its upward movement being comparatively quiet and attracting less attention than during last week. "C. C. and I. C." which is the Wall-street abbreviation for Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central, opened at 39, yesterday, on a good demand for the stock, fluctuated somewhat during the day, but closed at a still further advance, the last sales being made at 41.

A well-known banker thinks that the rise in C., C. and I. C. is easily explained. The Pennsylvania Railroad owns the lease of this road, also the Chicago and Fort Wayne Roads, (both connecting Chicago with the East) among its many other similar properties, and controls their business to a very large extent. He says that although the C., C. and I. C. seems to be as good a road as the Chicago and Fort Wayne, the latter has heretofore been given the preference, and, consequently, its business has been very great, and its earnings heavy, to the detriment and loss of its competitor, which, of course, has gone down in the market. About the time of its lease, the C., C. and I. C. stock was quoted as low as 12 in the market, and much of it was bought in at that figure and prices almost as low, it is said, by men controlling the Pennsylvania Road. Knowing this, and recent change in the policy of the Pennsylvania Road in favor of the C., C. and I. C. suddenly has a very large share of the business formerly given the Chicago and Fort Wayne thrown upon it, increasing its earnings, sending up its stock, and enabling the clique, who bought in at 12, to sell out at 41, or perhaps higher, and realizing a very comfortable profit. It is thought, too, that the rumored rise in the present rise in its stock. The sentiment referred to has just met an engineer, who has been engaged for the Pennsylvania Road in putting new rails, equipments, &c., on the C., C. and I. C. Road to improve its facilities and enable it to perform the heavy work required of it by the lessee. It is not improbable, it is said, that the policy of the Pennsylvania Road may again change, and the same plan be used to influence the stock of the C., C. and I. C.'s rival road. It is rumored that the Atlantic and Great Western Road, which, of itself, runs "from nowhere to nowhere," and is at present entirely dependent upon Erie for its business connections, will endeavor to break the lease of the C., C. and I. C. Road to the Pennsylvania Road, obtain possession of it, thereby connecting with Chicago, then lay rails from Salamanca, its Eastern terminus, across to the New-York Central, thus forcing Erie to underbid that road for its traffic, reduce rates of freight to Chicago to the sea-board, and materially bettering the financial prospects of the stockholders of the hitherto unfortunate Atlantic and Great Western Railroad. Below will be found a short history of the C., C. and I. C. its lease to Col. TOM SCOTT'S road, &c. It is from an official source:

The Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central Railway is a consolidation of the Columbus and Indiana Central and the Chicago and Great Eastern Railways, effected on Feb. 12, 1868. The consolidated roads were leased in the February following to that wonderful, insatiate corporation, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, for ninety-nine years, conjointly with the Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis Company, a short road running from Pittsburg to Columbus, Ohio, thus leasing nearly 500 miles of road with its branches. The consolidated road is divided as follows:

Columbus, Ohio, to Chicago, 312 miles; Bradford Junction to Bradford, 4 miles; Bradford to Logansport, to State line, Illinois, 133½ miles; total length of lines owned by the consolidated Company, 449 miles.

The Louisville Branch, between Cambridge and Nashville, Ind., twenty-five miles, was built and is owned in common by the Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central and the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indianapolis Railroad Companies, the former owning the latter Company. By the terms of the lease the lessees are to maintain the road and pay over to the lessors thirty per cent. per annum of the gross receipts. Built in accord the rented shall always equal $1,107,667, a sum equal to the interest on $18,000 first mortgage consolidated bonds, and $621,000 second-mortgage bonds of the Columbus and Indianapolis Railway Company. The lessees also agree to pay the interest on the second-mortgage bonds. Any net earnings remaining after the payments of interest as aforesaid are to be applied to the payment of the interest on second mortgage seven per cent. bonds to the amount of $1,000,000, and the balance (the period in which these bonds may be converted) to pay to a sinking fund one-half of one per cent. on the $15,521,000 referred to, and to apply any balance to dividends on common stock.

Of the second-mortgage bonds $3,800,000 have been sold to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to pay indebtedness to that Company, provide additional equipment, &c. The sum of $1,000,000 is to be held for the purpose of retiring the following outstanding bonds. The balance, $1,521,000, (less $14,000 applied to the payment of certain debts) has been deposited, was (and, with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, is used for construction, equipment and other such purposes as the Presidents of the companies shall determine. If the unissued bonds have not been used the funded debt of the Company is $20,036,174. The share capital of the Company is $12,000,000, making the total liabilities $32,036,174.

Vanderbilt's Job.

MONDAY, April 29, 1872.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The reports published in the Sunday Herald and World of the action of the Nineteenth Ward Railroad Reform Association, on Saturday night last, convey an impression exactly opposite to the facts, and as the articles referred to all begin with a declaration that the Nineteenth Ward Association approves of the Vanderbilt bill, the undersigned, who were present, felt space to contradict this statement. The Vanderbilt bill was advocated by a member; a resolution in its praise was introduced, but an amendment, striking out all after the word "resolved," and inserting an exactly opposite resolution, condemning the bill, was carried by a large majority. So that the meeting was represented by reports, made in the interest of the railroad, to have done the very thing it refused to do.

RAPID TRANSIT.

A Word from the Central Underground Company.

The present Board of Directors of the Central Under-ground Railway of New-York deem it their duty to make to the public a statement of certain facts which threaten the failure for an undefined period of all means and plans for rapid transit through this City. Having done so, they will leave with the public and the public representatives the responsibility, if, in spite of all our efforts to the contrary, so grave a misfortune happens. Although the subject of rapid transit is one of almost vital importance to every man, woman and child within the City and adjoining County of Westchester, and although it is no doubt true that each one of these persons would be willing to make much personal effort in order to secure such means of transit, it is probably not known or appreciated by any considerable number of the persons interested that the realization of the project for underground rapid transit is imminent peril, and that upon the action of the Legislature and the Governor on this subject within the next few days may depend the value of suburban and up-town property, the comfort and convenience of local travel, and great interests of trade and commerce. It being now a fact, it is reported, that certain members of the Legislature, who having resolved, from whatever motives, to do a wrong act, are not over nice in the selection of their reasons, that this Company deserves to have its franchises taken from it, because it has held its charter for three years without doing any work; and that the franchise of taken right to be given to CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, because he is the only person who is in earnest to build and has the means to build such a road; it seems proper to state a little of the history of this Company. It was incorporated as it now stands in April, 1869, with power to build a road commencing at City Hall Park, and ending at the intersection of the second Broadway in Union-square, thence under Union-square to Madison-square; thence under Madison-avenue to the Harlem River, and easterly and westerly along said river. Among the original corporators and first managers were several of Commodore VANDERBILT's most intimate associates. His railroad attorney, his engineer was the engineer of the Company; his own friends and his son-in-law sat in the Board. He was offered and refused participation in the construction of the road; and when called upon finally by the President of the Company, and invited to undertake the road, his only reply was perhaps serious in purport. "No! I shall be under ground a d—d sight sooner than this thing." He might at any time during these three years have had the control of the Company, and built the road upon his own terms had he felt any real interest in the accommodation of the public. The records of the Company show that when Mr. Vanderbilt interest had sufficiently demonstrated the purpose to do nothing with the charter, the members of the late Ring, by some arrangement, the terms of which are unknown to the present owners of the Company, obtained the direction of it. They were in full power in this Company as elsewhere in 1870, 1871, and a part of 1872. Their avowed purpose was to sell the charter or to prime the stock by lease of time in order that they might profit by other and competing schemes. During all this time some of the original corporators clung to their interests and necessarily mared the prosecution of the work.

In 1871 an officer of the company called on Mr. Tweed and Mr. Sweeny, to get the Ring to work and asked permission to make the necessary openings in streets to begin work, but was met with a flat refusal and the threatening statement that the Company "should never put spade in the earth of Manhattan Island. The Viaduct Company, to aid which the violent politicians had made the attack, had the ground, was then in vogue, but has now expired by limitation.

The terror of the Ring having passed away, in the month of January of this year, on the invitation of those of the stockholders who had remained faithful to the original design of the Company, certain capitalists of this City, whose names have been frequently published, met together and determined to unite their resources and terminate the anxious expense of the public by building a railroad under the charter of the Central Under-ground Company. These gentlemen had had no previous connection with the Company, were not responsible for any of its deceiving performances. They saw new men and brought in new energy and capital to revive a meritorious enterprise. Broadway having been the great bone of contention in past years, they deemed it best to apply to the Legislature for additional power to build upon that street. They accordingly solicited the assistance of prominent members of the Legislature, that their design was not to abandon their present route, but to obtain the additional route, both for the purpose of building upon it, and for the additional credit in raising money which would thus be obtained. They caused inquiry to be made of the agents of Commodore VANDERBILT's bill at Albany, and of the Commodore himself personally, to ascertain how his interests and feelings would now stand affected. They received assurances which they then and now believe to be true, that he had no objection to see the Central Under-ground Company succeed, but that the Vanderbilt party, so called, had no interest in and would in no way interfere in matters relating to City transit by steam.

While prosecuting their appeal to the Legislature it was announced in the public journals about April 2, that a new railroad combination had been formed, which was between the Hudson River and Harlem Roads to Morrisania, which depended for access to the City upon the Central Under-ground Road; and on the 1st April a bill was introduced creating Cornelius Vanderbilt a corporation, adopting word for word the charter of the Company, as to its line from City Hall Park to Union-square, giving power to Mr. Vanderbilt to construct the road by express terms repealing so much of our charter. At the same time the Vanderbilt lobby interest formed a combination with the Beach Pneumatic Company and passed a bill in its interest which in like manner appropriates our line from Madison-square to the Harlem River, which bill is now before the Governor. The Vanderbilt bill will undoubtedly be passed, this Company having no arguments of sufficient weight to reply to those which the other side are able to produce, and the Central Underground will thus have left to it the right to build one road between Union-square and another along the Harlem River.

The whole of the line and franchise of this Company were long ago pledged as security for its indebtedness, and a mortgage to perfect that security executed and recorded. The effect of the two bills above referred to is not only to destroy all means and occasion for providing rapid transit, but to destroy vested rights of property, and to impair the obligation of existing contracts. It is the obligation of this Company to its creditors, to public morality and to itself, to defend itself, its contracts and its charter. Should the two hostile bills, or either of them, become law, the Company will appeal to the Courts for protection, in the confident expectation that they will, so far at least as our chartered line be declared unconstitutional.

In the meantime, however, neither party will be able to build their lines, and the public want will go unsatisfied. For such a result only the promoters and makers of these unjust enactments can fairly be held responsible. Numerous bills have been introduced, but we have opposed none except those which proposed to take from us some part of our line.

Our Company stands ready to proceed with this important work, and the persons now controlling it are not simply those as Commodore VANDERBILT may prosecute any undertaking in which they engage.

The motive of this monstrous legal wrong is too evident for remark. Its consequences will be the destruction of faith in chartered rights, and in the honor of the State which confers and without reason takes them away. The public spirited citizens who have made efforts for the public good are met with such a response from the public representatives will not be likely again to resume them, and, finally, the whole question will be cast into the Courts of law, while the public continue to be dragged slowly through the streets in steamed and crowded cars.

We ask the public to reflect seriously whether upon every consideration of right and of fair dealing, as well as of interest, it is not the duty of every individual in it to protest in the most forcible and efficient manner possible against a wrong so flagrant, so causeless and so fatal to the public welfare.

By order of the Board of Directors,
OLIVER W. BARNES, President.

Funeral of Parsons Stevens.

The funeral of the distinguished citizen PARSONS STEVENS, Esq., took place yesterday afternoon at the residence No. 244 Fifth-avenue. The body having been embalmed, the casket was closed, and the face was not seen by the numerous friends and acquaintances who were present. The funeral service was read by Dr. WASHBURNE, of Calvary Church, in Fourth-avenue, the quartet choir from that church singing MOSENTHAL's beautiful adaptation of the opening verse. The pall-bearers were Messrs. A. P. Roe, John Marsh, C. H. Russell, H. F. Vail, A. T. Stewart, A. B. Duty, Amos Trowbridge and Frank Chickering. The body was removed temporarily to Calvary Church, where it will remain until the return of Mrs. and Miss STEVENS from Europe, when it will be removed to Mount Auburn, near Boston.

Arrest of a Noted Female Sneak Thief.

Yesterday a woman was found in the house No. 27 Renwick-street, on the top floor, by one of the inmates, Mrs. SMITH. Suspicion being excited, a search was made in the adjoining rooms, and it was found that wearing apparel worth $125, owned by Mrs. ANNIE CHAPUT, and $125 worth owned by Mrs. MARY A. SMITH, had been removed from the bureau and packed up for removal. The woman—who had a linen basket tied round her face, under the pretense of suffering from neuralgia, but really as a disguise—was arrested, and, in a small reticule she had, was found a lace chemise marked with Mrs. CHAPUT's name. The woman gave the name of EMMA SCHULE at the Station-house, but on being brought to Police Head-quarters, she was at once recognized as BARBARA HART alias Blind Sneak Sally, who had operated extensively in Harlem. She was taken before Justice Dowling, on Jefferson Market, and held for trial. It is expected that a large number of complaints will be made against her.

The Remaining Generals Call on the Soldiers.

NEW-YORK, April 29, 1872.

Gen. H. A. Barnum:

SIR: When the Encampment at Syracuse elected you to Department Commander, you came upon the platform and forward to the footlights, and there, with hand on heart, in the most approved fashion, returned to the charge that had been flying around among the comrades, "that if elected, you would make a political machine of the Grand Army." In your then sanphatic reassurance of any such design, had you the least possible idea of a single individual there believing you, and did you even then place the most implicit confidence in yourself? Because to me and many others your whole course since that period seems to be a living lie to its professions, and your scandalous manipulation of the posts in this City at the last election of officers proved too conclusively your evil intent; and now today, in the New-York Tribune, you adds call to the hypocrisy by addressing a high-sounding call to the soldiers and sailors of the nation, dated from the Arlington, Washington, D. C., (subordinate positions in the New-York Tax-office must be very lucrative,) in which you dare to assume the Administration of President GRANT is disintegrating the Republican Party, and that a meeting shall be convened in New-York City, May prox., at which you, with your noble (most distinguished) confreres, are to be supported, so as to dictate to the Philadelphia Convention its nominee for President. How charmingly modest we are, in these days of enlightenment, to revive the absolute craft of Kings or Pres

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange yesterday, Monday, April 29, the following sales were made by the auctioneers named.

By A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO., under a Supreme Court order in foreclosure, WM. C. BARRETT, Esq., referee, a three-story and basement high-stoop brown-stone house and lot, situate on the south side of East Seventy-sixth-street, 125 feet east of Third-avenue; sold for $11,800 to WM. FIKER.

By HUGH N. CAMP, also by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of EDWIN H. STEWART, Esq., referee, the premises known as No. 61 Broome-street, south side, between Lewis and George streets, embracing a lot 20 by 100 feet with two three-story brick tenement houses upon the same front and rear, respectively; sold for $8,000 to ERNEST ORI.

By E. H. LUDLOW & CO., also under a Supreme Court foreclosure, F. C. CORNELIUS, Esq., referee, one lot, 25 by 92.3, with buildings on the north side of Ninth-street, between Avenues B and C; sold for $7,700 to F. HEILBACH.

By JOHN WARREN, at public auction, a three-story frame house and lot on the east side of the Kingsbridge road, or St. Nicholas-avenue, between One Hundred and Eighty-fourth and One Hundred and Eighty-fifth streets; sold for $4,600 to WALTER H. MARTIN. No other business was transacted.

For today, at the Exchange, a large number of sections are announced, at which some desirable real estate will be offered. And as the day promises to be the busiest of the week, the attendance should be large. Full details in regard to the property to be sold were published yesterday, so that further comment is unnecessary.

At the Exchange, on Saturday, April 27, JAMES M. MILLER, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of WALTER L. LIVINGSTON, Esq., referee, disposed of a lot 26.11 by 65, located on the north-west corner of Third-avenue and One Hundred and Third-street, with an unfinished building thereon, for $15,000, which was purchased by C. E. VERNON. This sale had been previously some twelve times adjourned, and the parties interested are to be congratulated upon its final settlement. The auction held by JER. JOURNEY, Jr., on Saturday, at College Point, Long Island, at which two new houses, with three and a half acres of land, owned by PETER BALKIN, Esq., were offered for sale, was fairly attended, but as the bids made on the property went below the estimated value of the same it was withdrawn. Bids amounting to $20,000 were received.

Isaac Hoxie, real estate broker, No. 25 Pine-street, has removed his office to No. 131 Broadway, Trinity Building, basement. Mr. Hoxie reports having recently sold at private sale, the following property at the prices noted: One lot on the north side of Sixty-first-street, 225 feet east of Fifth-avenue, for $28,000; one plot of land, 62½ by 100, on the south side of One Hundred and Ninth-st., 25 feet west of Madison-avenue, for $6,000; one plot on the north side of One Hundred and Tenth-street, 100 ft. east of Fifth-avenue, running through to Eleventh-street, having a front of 62.6 feet on the first-named street, and of 123 feet on the second, for $25,000.

360 PROSPECT PARK LOTS ON Coney Island Road, Prospect, Gravesend and Greenwood avs., being the estate of Thomas Murphy, deceased, in the towns of Flatbush, for sale by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, Henry J. Cullen, Jr., Referee. Coney Island road is 100 ft. 6 wide; Prospect-av. is 100 feet wide, and is a continuation of Middle-av., and leads to the Grand Boulevard and Prospect Park; the best and shortest direct to Prospect Park, Fair Grounds and Coney Island.

JAMES COLE'S SON will sell on WEDNESDAY, May 1, at 12 o'clock, at the Exchange, Exchange, No. 389 Fulton-st., opposite the City Hall, Brooklyn, the THREE HUNDRED LOTS on the Coney Island Road as shown on the map.

This property is very desirable, either for those who wish a home which combines the benefits of the country with the comforts of the City, (being only a short distance outside the city line, and fronting directly on the Park, and between the two circles on the Coney Island Railroad,) or those who wish a very first-class investment, as everything promises that this property will increase in value more rapidly than any other property within 5 miles of the entrance of the Fair. The terms are so reasonable (one-third mortgage) that they bring these lots within the reach of almost everybody who desires a good home. The streets have been graded by the Commissioners, and are now undergoing the Belgian pavement. Sale positive, by order of the Court. Maps are now ready at the office of the Referee, No. 160 Broadway, New-York, and No. 389 Fulton-st., Brooklyn; also at the office of the auctioneer, 239 Fulton-st., Brooklyn.

The Road runs from Buffalo to the Detroit River, and is the Eastern link in the new AIR LINE FROM BUFFALO TO CHICAGO, and has been under construction for about two years past by railroad men who have seen the necessity for a STEEL RAIL, LOW GRADE SHORT ROUTE between the great railroad systems which diverge from Chicago, Toledo and Buffalo.
Among the builders of the road, by whose cash subscriptions 220 miles (out of 230) have already been graded, bridged and made ready for the superstructure, a large part of the steel rails bought, all of the materials for the stations, and a part of the equipment purchased, are:
MILTON COURTRIGHT, JOHN B. TRACY, DAVID DOWS, WM. L. SCOTT, HENRY PARNHAM, R. A. FORSYTH, HENRY H. PORTER, JOHN M. BURRE, M. L. SYKES, JR., B. F. ALLEN, all directors, either in the Chicago and Northwest, or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; GEO. OPDYKE, of the Midland Road; JOHN B. ALLEN, SIDNEY DILLON, DANIEL DREW, J. S. CASEMENT, J. A. J. CASEY, O. S. CHAPMAN, JOHN ROSS, DAVID STEWART, and F. H. WINSTON.
THE ROAD will be
33 MILES SHORTER THAN ANY OTHER ROAD,
either BUILT or in contemplation between Buffalo and Chicago, and will also shorten the distance between Toledo and Buffalo twenty-three miles.
THE MAXIMUM GRADE on the entire line does not exceed FIFTEEN FEET to the mile—and Ninety-six per cent. of the road IS STRAIGHT.
THE ROAD WILL BE COMPLETED and in running order on or before Dec. 31 of this year.
The principal and interest of the bonds are payable either in New-York, London or Frankfort.
We confidently recommend the bonds to all classes of investors.

GOLD BONDS.
At 90 and accrued interest in currency,
THIRTY YEARS TO RUN, AND ISSUED FOR $30,000 PER MILE.
This road forms the shortest and most direct route from the great anthracite and agricultural coal fields of Pennsylvania into the central part of this state, and will run in connection with the New-York Central Road, which it crosses at Cayuga Bridge, Traversing, as it does, this fertile and much populous agricultural district, generally known as the "GARDEN OF THE STATE," its local traffic will be large, but its greatest source of revenue will be from its coal business. The road is being rapidly built, and will be in active operation during this year. From our knowledge of this enterprise, and after the most thorough investigation, we most confidently recommend the Bonds as a safe investment. We offer, for the present, the Bonds at 90 and accrued interest in currency.

THE CITY HALL.

Action of the Boards of Aldermen Yesterday.

Protest Against Selling Matches—The Fifty Streets—Contractors Not to be Paid Until They Clean Them—Up-town Politicians.

The politicians—or, rather, that class of citizens who frequent low groggeries on Saturday nights, and believe they regulate municipal matters in general—hung about the City Hall and County Court-house, yesterday, and discussed the position of affairs, which, in their opinion, was never so disastrous as at the present time. The probability of the Governor signing or vetoing the charter was an exciting topic of discussion; the authorities below about equally divided on the subject. Some of the "well informed" were anxious to make bets that the Governor would send it back to-day to the Assembly with a most expressive veto on the cumulative clause, and not a few were equally anxious to bet that he would take no action in the matter, but allow it to become law, leaving the Legislature to bear the responsibility of any evil effects that might arise. Those who expressed a belief that the Governor would sign the charter were choked down with derisive laughter seen by those who believed that he would allow it to become law.

The next thing talked about was the action of the General Committee at Tammany Hall on Saturday night. Those who were desirous at that meeting of organizing Tammany Hall on the basis of the last two years, feel chagrined at the way they were treated, the Chairman, as they say, "not allowing them even a chance." It is asserted by the papers published of last year that "Tammany has gone to the dogs," and the "citizens have been deprived of all their rights," which plainly indicates that the "spoilers" see no hope of again getting their hands into the City Treasury. It is argued that last Saturday night's action has so divided the Democratic Party that, even if a chance had existed of "saving the State," all hope is now lost. The City Hall politicians express a total want of confidence in the leaders chosen by Tammany Hall, who are not of their kin. The rank and file of the grog-shop politicians express a belief that the City is completely lost, and that the Republicans will get a large share of the Municipal Government, even if they do not get the whole. And this they say, will be caused by the action of Tammany Hall on Saturday night. The fact that JOHN FOX was made one of the Vice-Presidents, after so much of his opposition to the Ring, is looked upon as being most damaging to the party. The Dowling faction, of which TOM COMAN is an exponent, prophesies that nothing can now be done to save the party from ruin, and that the plan adopted on Saturday of "choking down" the members of the former General Committee, will so divide that body as to cause a fatal disruption. From all the opinions expressed, pro and con, the unprejudiced listener could easily gather the fact that there will yet be serious trouble in the Wigwam, even with all the efforts that are being made by honest politicians to restore Tammany Hall to something like a respectable position as a political society.

Meeting of the Board of Aldermen—Business Yesterday.

The Board met at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In the absence of the President, JOHN COCHRANE, who is at Cincinnati, Alderman MERRIHAN was appointed to preside.

Alderman MCLAREN, as Chairman of the Committee on Markets, reported, presenting a preamble and resolution protesting against the sale of the public markets by authority of the State Legislature. The report was received and the preamble and resolution adopted.

Alderman WILDE offered a resolution authorizing and directing the Committee on Arts and Sciences to procure for the Governor's Room, in the City Hall, a full-length picture of the late Prof. SAMUEL F. B. MORSE, the cost not to exceed $2,500. The resolution was laid over, under the rule.

Alderman VASSEN brought up a report from the Committee on Street Pavements, in which, at the request of a number of citizens, the attention of the City authorities is called to the disgraceful condition of the street-pavements in many of the principal thoroughfares in the City.

The money expended for street repairing during the four years named hereafter, was:

1869—From taxation	$217,602 31
1869—From trust account	317,544 19
1870—From taxation	265,028 06
1870—From trust account	59,203 04
1871—From taxation	22,808 60
Total	$1,082,027 11
By the Croton Aqueduct Board in 1868 and 1869	$725,145 61
By the Department of Public Works, 1870 and 1871	$42,030 90—$1,098,027 21

The present deplorable condition of many of the streets, &c., is owing more to insufficient expenditure than to any other cause, as the only $22,808 60 in 1871 was to a tax administration of the executive duties of the officers. To effectually carry out the desired measure of reform in this matter—to put the streets in proper condition—the Committee recommend that $1,000,000 be provided, and disbursed with the most rigid and scrupulous honesty in repairing and repaving the many streets now wretchedly out of repair. The Committee, therefore, recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

That the Commissioner of Public Works have the street pavement in Fifth-avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Fifty-ninth streets, repaired with all practicable dispatch.

A resolution of like import, as to the pavement in Fifteenth-street, between Second-avenue and the East River.

That in making up the estimate of amount of money required to conduct the government of this City for the balance of this year, the persons making such estimate are requested to include them under the head of "streets—repaving and repairs," $600,000.

The report was accepted and the resolutions adopted.

On motion of Alderman GILSEY, the Controller was requested to cease making payments to the street-cleaning contractor until the streets are better cleaned. The motion met with unanimous approval.

The Board adjourned after the dispatch of some further business of no public interest.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen met at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, pursuant to adjournment, OTIS T. HALL, President, in the Chair.

The President presented a remonstrance from ENOCH KETCHUM, residing at One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street and Second-avenue. It was referred to the Committee on Railroads.

The weekly communication from the Finance Department as to the appropriation made by the Board of Apportionment for the use of the Common Council, was read, and showed a credit balance (the sum of the appropriations not this month) of $66,145. According to the vote passed 29th January last, communications of similar import have to be furnished by the Controller to each department of the City Government.

After minor business the Board adjourned.

The Commissioner of Public Works on Street Pavements.

Commissioner VAN NORT has made the following communication in reference to street pavements relaid by the gas companies:

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE, NO. 237 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, April 29, 1872.

C. E. Gunderson, Esq., President Metropolitan Gas-light Company:

SIR: It is incumbent upon me to state that the manner in which the pavers are doing the work of relaying the pavements of the street pavements removed for the purpose of laying the pipes of the Metropolitan Gas-light Company is not satisfactory to this Department. Numerous well founded complaints are continually poured in at this Department, and it becomes my duty to call that prompt notice must be taken of the same. You will therefore please take immediate steps to correct the abuse of privilege, or action must be had by this Department immediately under this final notice.

Respectfully, GEO. M. VAN NORT, Commissioner of Public Works.

The Burroughs Murder Trial in Paterson.

The fourth day's proceedings in the trial of LEWIS GARRABRANT, at Paterson, for the murder of RAMSON BURROUGHS, as opened yesterday by the re-examination of GILBERT RILEY, the colored man who lived in the next house to BURROUGHS, and where the accused was a constant visitor. His wife, PHOEBE JANE RILEY, was afterward examined, and WILLIAM ALFRED RILEY, a son of these witnesses. But the testimony developed nothing new, being chiefly in regard to details of facts which are already known.

THE BOOK-ROOM FRAUDS.

Dr. Lanahan's Charges Sustained by the Book Committee's Report.

The majority report of the Book Committee of the M. E. Church, who have been in session for some time past of the publishing house on Broadway, corner of Eleventh-street, is prepared, but will not be made public until it is read before the General Conference. Mr. J. P. KILBRETH, a book-keeper from Cincinnati, was employed by the Committee last Fall as an expert, and, since September, has been engaged in an examination of the records and books of the establishment, during the entire period of the alleged frauds and irregularities, and last week made an elaborate report to the Committee, in which the management of each department is discussed in detail.

The report admits that HOFFMAN, as superintendent of the binding department, kept no records, and had no means of showing that the stock alleged to have been purchased was received, and that this state of things was "discreditable and damaging to the Concern," and especially so to Dr. POMEROY, as business manager, having charge of that department. The report admits that the testimony showed that the allegation against HOFFMAN of drawing money for wages which was not paid as wages was well founded; that there were several hundred dollars of such payments; that there were other evidences of fraud, and a bad state of things existed throughout the department.

The report shows that the chief of the paper department, naturally anxious to please his superior, Dr. JAMES POMEROY, junior Book Agent, gave the entire control of the paper purchases for several years to J. F. FORBES, son of the above, who knew how to use this greatly to his own advantage, and did so use it.

Eleven members of the Book Committee, in the majority report prepared for the General Conference, maintain their former position, and avoid the difficulty of attempting to answer the statements of their own expert by briefly stating that they have not had time to give his facts and figures a careful examination. The three members who dissent in favor of the position assumed by Dr. LANAHAN have not yet completed their minority report, which will be filled with facts and figures fully vindicating the course pursued by that gentleman.

Dr. LANAHAN feels the utmost assurance of full vindication before the Conference, and his friends in the Church fully share in his confidence.

THE TURF.

Opening of the Chickasaw Jockey Club Spring Meeting.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 29.—The first race was a sweepstakes hurdle; two miles; subscription $50; half forfeit; club adds $400. There were six entries, and the race was won easily by Blind Tom, beating Mary Hennessy and Tensile. Time, 4:02¼. Chalmette, Tom Corbett and Boyonet paid forfeit. Temple refused the second hurdle in the last half mile.

The second race was a trial stakes for three year olds; mile heats; subscription, $50; half forfeit; $400 added. There were eighteen entries, and the race was won by a length by Cups Race, beating Bruculet, the others forfeiting; time, 1:48¾; 1:52¾.

The third race was a handicap; mile and a quarter, for all ages; subscription, $50; half forfeit; $600 added. There were ten entries, and the race was won by Euchre, beating Keno, Lord Byron, Repeater and Elia Powell in the order named; time, 2:15¼.

The favorites won in each race, the odds being about four to one against the field.

The weather was dry and hot and the attendance good.

Turf Notes.

The trot announced to take place yesterday at Fleetwood Park was postponed to Saturday next, May 4.

The return match between the gray gelding Mercer to wagon and the bay mare Topsy in harness is announced to take place on Wednesday, May 1.

OLIVER MARSHALL, the well-known pool-seller, arrived from Providence, R. I., last night, and is preparing for the campaign. He reports that THOMAS CARPENTER is at the old Washington track with a most formidable stable of thirty trotters, among them such old campaigners as Yonkonah, Wormwood, Lydia Thompson, Geo. Hall, May Be, Commodore Ferry and Boy Billy. He will also have the fast young colt Rowes Tourney, formerly known as Thomas Jefferson, Jr.

Col. AMASA SPRAGUE has not yet decided to give a Spring meeting at Narragansett Park this year. He proposes to give a grand trotting meeting in the latter part of August or beginning of September, and a trotting meeting on a grand scale in October.

Base-Ball—Another Waterloo for the Mansfields.

After being defeated in Troy last week by scores of 16 to 0 and 21 to 10, the Mansfields, of Middletown, Conn., the latest addition to the list of championship contestants, came to the Metropolis, and engaged the Mutuals, on the Union Ground, yesterday afternoon, the game being the first of the championship series. The defeat which the visitors received must be rather discouraging after their Troy experience, but with a little more practice against such pitching as they will have to encounter, they may yet take a respectable position in the list, their fielding being already up to the highest mark.

Mystery at Kean's Woods, N. J.

On Sunday, two gentlemen, residents of Elizabeth, were walking in Kean's Woods, a place distant about two miles from that city, when they found a corpse, lying on its face, among the dead leaves. Upon turning it over, a bullet-wound was discovered over the right eye, and a Colt's revolver was lying on the ground under the body. From the appearance of the body it was believed that he had committed suicide, but the pockets had been rifled, and, a few feet distant, was found some fractional currency, amounting to $3 85. Distant a little from this was a pen-knife, and, in another spot, a night-key. There was a clue given as to his identity by the discovery in one of his pockets of a copy of a New-York paper, containing an account of the mysterious disappearance of a well-known Philadelphia contractor named GEORGE HICK. The paper was so folded that the words "missing contractor" in the bold-line work were the first to meet the eye. The description of the missing contractor corresponded with that of the dead man.

Coroner GIRES removed the body to the City of Elizabeth, where, at FORD'S rooms, in East Broad-street, it was viewed yesterday by a large number of persons. An inquest will be held.

Jersey City Board of Public Works.

Yesterday the Board of Public Works of Jersey City adopted the following resolutions:

That the total cost of surveying shall not exceed $20,000 for the year ending July 1, 1872. That also relative to the petition for improvement be adopted without the application of two-thirds of the property-owners. A "Surveyors' Bureau" was ordered, to be under the care of the Chief Engineer.

Their most important work was the adoption of the following resolution: "That there shall be no reconstruction of streets or sewers in Jersey City during the present year, after this date, except in cases of absolute necessity." They fixed salaries as follows: Clerk of the Board, $1,600; Clerk of Commissioner of Streets and Sewers, $2,400; Permit Clerk, $1,200; Water Assessor, $2,000; Superintendent of Public Buildings, $2,200; Lamp Inspector, $2,200; Assistant Street Commissioner, $1,800; Sewer Inspector, $1,800; Overseer of Repairs, $1,800; Superintendent of Sewers, $1,800.

A Man Shot by a Lunatic.

Late Saturday night JAMES DUNN was shot, probably fatally, by an insane man, a son of GEORGE HUTCHINSON, at Harrison Township, New-Jersey. HUTCHINSON is a baker, and DUNN was in employ of his. On the evening in question DUNN was driving into the yard, after making his usual rounds, when the lunatic ran out from the house armed with a double-barreled gun, which he immediately discharged at DUNN. The young man dropped from his seat insensible, and was carried into an adjoining house. He is not expected to recover. Hutchinson will be removed to an asylum. There is no reason assigned for the deed other than his insanity.
